

Daytime Stars

A Poet's Memoir of the Revolution, the Siege of Leningrad, and the Thaw

Olga Berggolts

Translated and edited by
Lisa A. Kirschenbaum

Foreword by Katharine Hodgson

The University of Wisconsin Press

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Foreword: Finding Memory in the Margins Katharine Hodgson	xi
Preface	xxi
Acknowledgments	xxv
Introduction Daytime Stars as Historical Source Lisa A. Kirschenbaum	3
Part I
Chapter 1 Journey to the Town of My Childhood	15
The Dream	15
Papa's Back	19
Fairy Tale of Light	25
Petrograd	28
In My Memory	29
The Knight of Light	31
The Essential Book	34
"It's Mine!"	41
Two Meetings	44
Pen and Ink	49
"Silver Night"	51
Last Summer	54
Chapter 2 That Forest Clearing	57

Chapter 3	The Nevsky Gate Campaign	68
	Daytime Stars	68
	Day of Heights: Childhood	74
	Day of Heights: Flanders Chain	85
	Flowers Immortal	87
	Day of Heights: “Guzhovo Will Not Be Taken”	91
	Lenin	96
	“You’re Published at Our Factory”	103
	Day of Heights: Lermontov	107
	Day of Heights: “Defend the Revolution!”	113
	The Valdai Duga	116
	The Crop-Eared Bell	120
	The Path to My Father’s House	124
	Anton Ivanovich Is Angry	126
	Cigarette Break	128
	Little Steps in the Ice	129
	The Secret of the Earth	131
	Princess Barbara	137
	Glory of the World	144
	The Path of Return	146

Part II

Chapter 4	Good Morning, People!	151
	“Our Fritz Is Dying”	151
	Meeting at the Astoria	155
	“Guten Morgen, Fritz!”	158
Chapter 5	Blockade Bathhouse	164
	Notes	169
	List of Contributors	193
	Index	195