

Florin Oprescu

Power and Literature

Strategies of Subversiveness in the Romanian Novel

Translated by
Monica Oprescu and Bianca Popescu

DE GRUYTER

Contents

Argument — 1

1 The Criticism of Ideas on Power — 8

1.1 Theories on Power. From the Social and Philosophical Analysis to the Aporias of Literature — 8

1.1.1 The will to power and its Ideological Foundation within the Republic of Letters — 8

1.1.2 The Sociological Perspective on Power — 18

1.2 The Literature and its Battles on the Field of Power — 26

1.2.1 The Canon Battlefield — 26

1.2.2 The Novel Battlefield — 37

1.2.3 Subject-Voice-Diathesis. The Pragmatical Power Taxonomy in Literature — 49

1.2.4 Subject-Voice. A(n) nearly (Im)Possible Epic Equation — 53

2 The Active Power of the Subject — 58

2.1 The Fanariot Power in XIXth Century. At the Doorway of Sunrise — 58

2.2 The Writer at the Doorway of Sunset — 75

2.3 The Old Parvenu at the Doorway of the Novel — 82

2.4 Scenes from the Socio-political Life and the Hierarchization of Power — 89

2.5 The Physiognomy of the Activist-Arriviste and the Gradual Instruments of Power — 100

3 The Reflexive Power of the Subject — 108

3.1 In Search of Power Authenticity — 108

3.2 The Power of the Interwar Novelistic Canon — 120

3.3 From the Literaturisation of the Autobiographical Trauma to the Reflexive Power — 130

3.3.1 The Surrealist Dare. The Autobiography of “[...] a man cut in half by a window” — 131

3.3.2 The Occurrence of the Subject in the Immediate Reflexivity — 137

3.4 The Cinetic Anamorphosis of the Reflexive Power — 146

4	The Passivity of the Subject faced with the Power of History — 162
4.1	The Teratology of Totalitarian Power. The Romanian Case — 162
4.1.1	The ‘Cultural Revolutions’ and the Illusions of Mass Power — 162
4.1.2	Victims and Heroes of the Socialist Battle — 166
4.2	The Most Beloved Man on Earth and the Passivization of the Subject, Faced with Excessive Power — 176
4.2.1	The Preda Case. The Raving of the Most Contested Prose-Writer — 176
4.2.2	The Most Passive Man on Earth. Illusions, Isolation and Passivity — 185
5	The Impersonalization of Power in Contemporary Novel — 198
5.1	The Memory of Power, the Power of Memory and the Narrative Typology of the Postcommunist Novel — 198
5.1.1	Memory, History, Novel-a Variable Balance — 198
5.1.2	Contemporary Novel as a Novel of Failed or Reclaimed Memory — 211
5.1.3	The Transitional Novel. A Modular Typology — 217
5.2	The Impersonalization of Power and the Stigma of Historical Memory — 226
5.2.1	The Novel without Memory and History in the Ecuation of Impersonalization. From Apud to Vienna and back — 226
5.2.2	The Transgressive Method of Impersonalization — 235
	Conclusions — 245
	Bibliography — 252
	Index — 264