

*Explorations in Baltic Medical History,
1850–2015*

EDITED BY
NILS HANSSON AND JONATAN WISTRAND

 UNIVERSITY OF ROCHESTER PRESS

Contents

Foreword	vii
Peter M. Nilsson
Preface	ix
Heiner Fangerau
Circulation of Knowledge in the Baltic Sea Region: An Introduction	1
Nils Hansson and Jonatan Wistrand
Part One: Transfers of Medical Knowledge across the Baltic Sea
1 Gym Machines and the Migration of Medical Knowledge in the Nineteenth Century	15
Anders Ottosson
2 Gynecological Massage: Gender, Conflict, and the Transfer of Knowledge in Medicine during the Fin de Siècle	41
Michaela Malmberg
3 Worlds Unexplored: Medicine in Stettin, 1800–1945	63
Joanna Nieznanowska
4 Smallpox in Malmö, Sweden, 1932: Disputed Knowledge of Infection, Contagion, and Vaccination in the Baltic Sea Region	87
Motzi Eklöf
5 The Politicization of the Temperance Movement in Pre-independence Estonia	113
Ken Kalling and Erki Tammiksaar

Part Two:
Bridging the Baltic: Comparative Studies

6	Network Transfer: Paul Ehrlich and German-Scandinavian Scientific Relationships around 1900 Axel C. Hüntelmann	135
7	Dorpat University in the Late Nineteenth Century as a Transit Space for Psychiatric Knowledge: The Example of Emil Kraepelin and His Conceptualization of Melancholia Maike Rotzoll and Frank Grüner	168
8	Sanatorium Narratives from the Baltic Sea Region and Early Signs of the Pathographical Genre: The Case of Harriet Löwenhjelm Jonatan Wistrand	186
9	Biobanking at the Baltic Sea: An Analysis of the Swedish, Estonian, and German Approaches Katharina Beier	203
10	The Simultaneous Embedment and Disembedment of Biomedicine: Intercorporeality and Patient Interaction at Hemodialysis Units in Riga and Stockholm Martin Gunnarson	229
	Notes on Contributors	249
	Index	251