Introduction	1
Part 1 Concepts: Information Entropy, Negentropy, Noise	13
I How to Draw the Line between Information and Noise	15
II Entropy as 'Freedom of Choice'	23
III Information Entropy and Physical Entropy	27
IV The Idea of 'Potential Information'	29
V Physical Concepts of Information and Informational Concepts of Physics	35
VI Information as Process Rather Than Content	39
VII To Think about Information as a Process of Individuation	43
VIII Redundancy and Necessity	51
IX Logic and Freedom of Choice	57
X Noise as Spurious Uncertainty	61
XI Negentropy	65
XII Complexity on the Basis of Noise	71
XIII The Astigmatism of Intuition	79
XIV The Path of Despair	85

Part 2	Empirical Noise	91
I	On the Transduction of the Concept of Noise	93
II	Accidental Information, Predictable Noise	97
III	Ready-Made Information	103
IV	Cosmic Background Radiation	109
V	Noise in the Gap between Narratives	115
VI	Noise in Finance	119
VII	Statistics: The Discipline of the Prince	133
VIII	The Man without Qualities	139
IX	Noise Abatement: The Dawn of Noise	143
X	Noise Pollution	149
XI	Toxic, Viral, Parasitic	155
Part 3	The 'Mental State of Noise'	165
I	The Crossroads: Mathematical, Technical, Empirical and Subjective Noise	167
II	Internal Chaos, Terror and Confusion	169
III	The Vicious Whirl of Sensations	179
IV	Keat's Negative Capability	181
V	Closure to Noise and the Paradox of the Declining Life	187
VI	The Catastrophic Reaction to Noise	191
VII	Anxiety	195
VIII	Order	199
IX	Control	203

X	The Helmsman Metaphor: Kybernetes	207
XI	The Helmsman in Plato's Alcibiades Dialogue	213
