

Justify the Enemy

Becoming Human in South Africa

Zakes Mda

Edited and introduced by J.U. Jacobs

NATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR THE HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

UNIVERSITY OF KWAZULU-NATAL PRESS

Contents

Introduction: Zakes Mda and the Place of Writing by J.U. Jacobs	1
A Writing Life
Lessons from the Writing Life	21
Babel's Happiness	25
Justify the Enemy: Becoming Human in South Africa	30
The Pink Mountain: Landscapes and the Conception of a Literature of Public Action	41
On Writing Historical Fiction vs Fictionalised History: Lessons from Sol Plaatje's Mhudi	54
Write What You Don't Know: An Outsider's Reflections on Place, Memory and the Creative Process	70
Filling the Void: Negotiating Memoir, Autobiography and Memoirs	79
A Writer and Human Rights
Interview: Zakes Mda in Conversation with Michèle Betty	95
Fiction and Politics	100
Free Eskinder Nega	102
Rwanda Gacaca	105
Creativity in the New South Africa
Excellence Would be Meaningless without Mediocrity: Interview with Zakes Mda	113
Creativity after Apartheid	116
Biko's Children	127
The Fiction of Reconciliation: Creating Dialogue through Verbal and Performance Arts in South Africa	142
A Storage Place of Memory	161

Parody, Satire and the Carnavalesque in Interactive African Theatre	168
Some Observations on Culture and the African Malaise	182
The State of the Nation
Ten Years of Democracy	201
What it Means to be an African: Shifting Identities in the South African Context	205
A Letter to Mandela	216
The Contradictions of Mandela	222
After Mandela: South Africa and the Culture of Human Rights	225
Two Steps Forward, One Step Back: Twenty Years of Freedom	232
The Myth of Colour Blindness in South Africa	236
Our Twin Pathologies: Conspicuous Consumption and Instant Gratification	238
Do We Need Patriotic Journalism?	247
Earth Matters
A Perspective on Global Warming	263
A Further Perspective on Global Warming	265
Notes	269