

Contents

Acknowledgments · xiv

References, Notation, Translations · xvi

Abbreviations · xviii

Introductory Remarks · xix

Part I Historical Perspectives

- 1 Durkheim's religious quest I Adolescent changes, family life and personal beliefs · 3
  - 1 Introduction · 3
  - 2 Boyhood, youth and the rejection of Judaism · 5
  - 3 Psychoanalytic factors · 13
  - 4 The significance of Jewishness · 14
  - 5 Asceticism and family life · 18
  - 6 His religious quest · 20
  - 7 Patriotism, politics and war · 23
  - 8 The epilogue · 27
- 2 Durkheim's religious quest II In professional achievement · 30
  - 1 To greater things · 30
  - 2 Disciples and the journal · 31
  - 3 Influence in the realm of education · 34
  - 4 'More a priest than a scholar'? · 40
- 3 The development of Durkheim's thought on religion I The early period · 47
  - 1 The search for lines of demarcation · 47
  - 2 Publications and substantive issues · 51
  - 3 The beginnings and early influences · 55
  - 4 Characteristics of the period · 58

CONTENTS

- 4 The development of Durkheim's thought on religion II The middle period · 60
  - 1 The 'revelation' · 60
  - 2 Durkheim's reading of Robertson Smith · 62
  - 3 Feverish activity · 70
  - 4 Characteristics · 74
- 5 The development of Durkheim's thought on religion III The final formulation · 77
  - 1 The work continues with lectures, articles and the book · 77
  - 2 The 1906–7 lectures: 'La Religion: les origines' · 79
  - 3 Les Formes élémentaires · 82
  - 4 Its reception · 86
  - 5 Continued glory and demise · 90

Part II Taking up Positions

- 6 Procedures and assumptions · 95
  - 1 The religious beliefs of the sociologist · 95
  - 2 The careful experiment · 102
  - 3 The issue of totemism · 109
- 7 The sacred and the profane: the ground of religion I Defining the two poles · 115
  - 1 Introduction · 115
  - 2 Durkheim's development of the notion of the sacred · 116
  - 3 Not the sacred but the sacred–profane · 117
  - 4 Basic meanings · 124
  - 5 The sacred's own binary system · 126
  - 6 The origin and constitution of the sacred: the stamp of society · 130
  - 7 The profane · 133
  - 8 Trying to deal with the profane · 136
- 8 The sacred and the profane: the ground of religion II The relations between them: further analysis · 140

- 1 The relation between the sacred and the profane · 140
- 2 The duality accepted and attacked · 143
- 3 Further characteristics of the sacred · 149
- 4 Conclusion · 159

- 9 Commitment to a definition · 163
  - 1 Early and late attempts · 163
  - 2 Phenomena: wholes, parts and facts · 165
  - 3 Emphasis on coercive force: the attempt to be scientific · 170
  - 4 Individual religious phenomena: their exclusion · 175
  - 5 Change in definition and the consequences · 177
  - 6 Reasons for the change · 187
  - 7 The definition: consequences for the discipline · 189

- 10 The problem of the social and the individual in religion · 193
  - 1 Religion is a social phenomenon · 193
  - 2 The individual admitted, but disregarded: a point of criticism · 195
  - 3 Sociology has no option · 201

- 11 'All religions are false: all religions are true' · 205
  - 1 Truth is the issue · 205
  - 2 'All religions are false' · 206
  - 3 Is religion then an illusion? · 207
  - 4 Force, the indicator of reality · 209
  - 5 'All religions are true' · 215
  - 6 Some consequences of Durkheim's position · 217
  - 7 All sociologists of religion start where Durkheim does · 220
  - 8 Conclusion · 221

Part III Beliefs and Ideas

- 12 God's identity revealed · 227
  - 1 God's locus in society · 227
  - 2 God as society hypostasized · 231
  - 3 'Proofs' · 235

CONTENTS

- 4 Criticisms · 239
- 5 The enterprise assessed · 242

- 13 Society: a divine being? · 244
  - 1 The other side of the coin · 244
  - 2 Indications of divine qualities · 245
  - 3 The nature of society: divine in what sense? · 248
  - 4 How original was Durkheim? · 257
  - 5 Criticism and evaluation · 259

- 14 In the beginning: religion or society? · 262
  - 1 True to his own principles · 262
  - 2 All that is religious is social · 262
  - 3 The primacy of religion: all that is social is religious? · 264
  - 4 A meaningless paradox? · 268
  - 5 Further considerations · 272

- 15 Représentations, symbols and reality · 275
  - 1 Introduction · 275
  - 2 What is reality? · 276
  - 3 Représentations · 279
  - 4 The sociological search: a change in direction? · 283
  - 5 There are no unknowable symbols · 290
  - 6 Things and symbols · 292
  - 7 Religious représentations: what do they represent? · 295
  - 8 Conclusion · 297

- 16 The functions of religion: a case of misunderstanding? · 300
  - 1 An old theoretical rock · 300
  - 2 The two major functions · 301
  - 3 The bases of the two functions · 305
  - 4 Religion functions so as to stabilize and integrate society · 307
  - 5 Religion as an agent for control in a negative or ascetical mode · 310
  - 6 How many functions? · 311
  - 7 Therefore religion is eternal · 313
  - 8 Function, persistence and change · 315

Part IV Ritual and Effervescent Assembly

- 17 Ritual I Prolegomena · 321
  - 1 Introduction: prominence and neglect · 321
  - 2 Assumptions and method · 323
  - 3 Early ideas about ritual · 326
  - 4 The third period · 328
- 18 Ritual II Classification and function · 329
  - 1 Definitions and basic classification · 329
  - 2 Negative rites outlined: their function or effects · 330
  - 3 Positive rites outlined: their function or effects · 332
  - 4 Piacular rites · 339
  - 5 An evaluation of Durkheim's primary classification of ritual · 341
  - 6 Appraisal and the issue of one and many functions · 343
- 19 Ritual III Its relation to la vie sérieuse · 352
  - 1 La vie sérieuse: la vie légère · 352
  - 2 Aspects of la vie légère · 353
  - 3 The dichotomy evaluated · 358
- 20 Ritual and myth: primacy or parity? · 362
  - 1 The two components · 362
  - 2 The primacy of ritual · 364
  - 3 Primacy of myth and belief · 366
  - 4 Myth and ritual: parity of status · 373
  - 5 Parity of status: difficulties and problems · 376
- 21 Effervescent assembly: the source of religious change and strength I The process · 380
  - 1 Religious and social change · 380
  - 2 Collective effervescence described · 382
  - 3 Effervescence examined: two types or functions · 385
  - 4 Further examples · 390
- 22 Effervescent assembly: the source of religious change and strength II Questions, criticisms and evaluation · 395
  - 1 A psychological theory? · 395
  - 2 The influence of other thinkers · 403

CONTENTS

- 3 Universality and limitations · 405
- 4 Problems of differentiation from ritual · 408
- 5 The source of religion? · 411
- 6 Effervescence and représentations · 412
- 7 The problem of creativity · 414

Part V Contemporary Religion

- 23 Durkheim's attitude to traditional religions · 421
  - 1 Introduction · 421
  - 2 Christianity praised · 422
  - 3 Roman Catholicism: Durkheim's admiration and disgust · 427
  - 4 Protestantism: did Durkheim understand it? · 435
  - 5 A liberal or a medievalist? · 439
- 24 Secularization: the history of mankind · 442
  - 1 The inevitability of religious change · 442
  - 2 Words used by Durkheim relating to religious change and secularization · 443
  - 3 Age-long secularization · 445
  - 4 Recent secularization · 447
  - 5 The effects of secularization on society · 451
  - 6 Religious change, not secularization? · 452
  - 7 Some suggested explanations · 454
- 25 The invasion of religion by science · 457
  - 1 Science, the real cause of secularization · 457
  - 2 The superiority of science as a source of knowledge · 461
  - 3 Science is not god! · 464
  - 4 Only a partial take-over? · 467
  - 5 Resultant confusion · 468
  - 6 Appraisal of Durkheim's analysis of secularization · 472
- 26 The new religion: the cult of man or society? · 476
  - 1 Prognostication and the characteristics of a future religion · 476

- 2 The source of religious revival: the working classes · 479
- 3 The emergence of an old French religion? · 481
- 4 The heresy of egoism · 485
- 5 But who is god? Man or society? · 487
- 6 Can the cult be justified? Its theology and ritual · 490
- 7 Basically a system of morality · 498

Part VI Postscript

- 27 Sociologie religieuse: a hope that quickly fades · 503
  - 1 Durkheim's vulnerability · 503
  - 2 The eclipse of Durkheim's sociologie religieuse · 504
  - 3 The storming of teachers' training colleges · 509
- 28 Sociologie religieuse: a case of exaggerated claims? · 513
  - 1 Religion as demiurge · 513
  - 2 The alleged destructiveness of Durkheim's sociologie religieuse · 518
  - 3 A final look · 521
- Notes · 524
- Bibliographies · 535
  - 1 Durkheim and religion · 535
  - 2 On Durkheim and religion · 544
- Name index · 563
- Subject index · 569