Series editors' preface	IX
Preface	XI
CHAPTER 1
Setting the scene	1
Introduction	1
Challenges for language teachers	2
The time factor	3
The importance of high-quality AL education	4
From elements to tasks, or vice versa?	6
Knowledge-based approaches	6
A task-based approach	7
Two different approaches to language teaching	13
Goals	15
From goals to activities	17
Learning environments	18
In the mix	18
Outline of the book	20
Part I. Additional language learning in the 21st century: Research and theory
CHAPTER 2
Cognitive aspects of additional language acquisition	25
Introduction	25
Language learning is an active process	29
The impact of frequency	31
The primacy of implicit knowledge	32
Rich, elaborate, meaningful input	34
The crucial role of output and feedback	37
The power of feedback	38
Error correction: Explicit or implicit feedback?	40
Interaction and the art of language-building conversations	42
The effects of cooperative learning	45

Learning by observing interactions	48
The impact of explicit language instruction	48
The limits to transfer	53
The explicit teaching of cognitive and metacognitive strategies	56
Effects of strategy instruction	57
How can self-regulation be enhanced?	58
Task performance and the use of multiple resources	59
The age factor	64
Conclusion	66

CHAPTER 3

Motivational and affective aspects of additional language acquisition	69
Introduction	69
L2 learning motivation: Why learn a second language at all?	69
Complex, multidimensional, and dynamic	70
Self-determination theory	72
The prospect of success	75
The value of learning an additional language	77
Value or values?	78
The concept of L2 selves	80
The role of emotions	84
The role of anxiety	84
Positive emotions	86
Flow	87
An integrated model of AL learning motivation	89
Research into teachers' multidimensional, dynamic motivation strategies	93
Conclusion: The classroom as a pedagogical space	98

Part II. High-quality additional language education:

From research and theory to practice

CHAPTER 4

Ten principles for high-quality additional language education	103
Introduction	103
The 10 key principles	104
Principle 1: Activate	105
How to activate students in the classroom	106
Activation and the linguistic focus of joint attention	109
Activating all students in the classroom	111
Principle 2: Challenge	113

Principle 3: Connect	119
Connections with prior knowledge	121
Connecting explicit learning with implicit learning	122
Principle 4: Recycle	126
Principle 5: Interact	129
Principle 6: Globalise	134
Crossing the boundaries between different subjects in the curriculum	134
Project-based work	136
Crossing boundaries between formal learning at school and informal learning outside school	138
Homework	140
Crossing the boundaries between languages	142
Principle 7: Assess	144
Principle 8: Diversify	145
Diversifying content	148
Principle 9: Care	149
Principle 10: Excite	151
Integrating the 10 principles	153
CHAPTER 5
Curriculum design for 21st-century additional language education	155
Introduction	155
Determining goals: A product-based or process-based approach?	155
Defining the key goals of the 21st-century curriculum	156
Narrow and broad AL curricula	161
Determining the unit of analysis for goal description	166
Needs analysis	168
Selecting the basic unit for classroom learning activity	170
The sequencing issue	171
Sequencing tasks	173
Parameters for task complexity	174
Teachers dynamically moving from complexity to difficulty	180
Language courses: To be or not to be?	183
The role of modern technology in the additional language curriculum	189
The multilingual turn	195
Goals	196
Learning activities	197
From theory to practice	200
Conclusion	201

CHAPTER 6
Implications for assessment	203
Introduction	203
Why?	204
What and how?	207
The missing links	214
Adding a process and growth dimension	216
Multiple observers	223
Progress, not perfection	225
Authentic performance-based assessment	227
Reinterpreting washback	229
Conclusion	230
CHAPTER 7
The dynamics of innovating additional language education	231
Introduction	231
Innovation in language education	232
The implementation of task-based language teaching	234
The impact of professional development interventions in general	240
The crucial importance of teamwork	243
Process-related aspects of implementing a school-based language policy	245
Research into the implementation of school-based language policies	251
Implications for pre-service teacher education	255
Curriculum design	255
Learning activities and assessment	259
Conclusion	262
CHAPTER 8
Concluding remarks	265
