

Contents

|   |            |
|---|------------|
| List of illustrations  | ix         |
| List of contributors   | xi         |
| 1 Children, childhood, and musical theater: an introduction  | 1   |
| JAMES LEVE AND DONELLE RUWE   |            |
| 2 Beginning with Do Re Mi: childhood and The Sound of Music   | 20  |
| RYAN BUNCH  |            |
| 3 Walt Disney, Dr. Benjamin Spock, and the Gospel of ideal childrearing: creating superlative nuclear families in Mary Poppins, Chitty Chitty Bang Bang, and Bedknobs and Broomsticks | 39  |
| WILLIAM A. EVERETT  |            |
| 4 Saving Mr. [Blank]: rescuing the father through song in children's and family musicals   | 59  |
| RAYMOND KNAPP   |            |
| 5 Dickensian discourses: giving a (singing) voice to the child hero in Oliver! and Copperfield   | 80  |
| MARC NAPOLITANO   |            |
| 6 Ghetto chic: utopianism and the authentic child in The Me Nobody Knows (1970)   | 96  |
| DONELLE RUWE  |            |
| 7 Little girls, big voices: Annie   | 116 |
| JAMES LEVE  |            |

|           |   |            |
|-----------|---|------------|
| 8  | Urchins, unite: Newsies as an antidote to Annie                              | 138 |
|           | MARAH GUBAR   |            |
| 9  | Agency, power, and the inner child: the “Revolting Children” of Matilda the Musical | 164 |
|           | HELEN FRESHWATER  |            |
| 10 | Children’s musicals for educational and community settings                                 | 188 |
|           | LAUREN ACTON  |            |
| 11 | Broadway Junior  | 211 |
|           | STACY WOLF  |            |
|           | Bibliography of scholarly sources  | 237        |
|           | Index  | 249        |