

Contents

Acknowledgements	x
List of Figures	xiii
List of Abbreviations	xiv
Note on Texts	xv
Introduction	1
Part 1 “Ruin Hath Taught Me Thus to Ruminare”	1
Part 2 The Ruins of England	54
1 Starting With the Debris of Finis Imperii: Titus Andronicus	79
2 Lucrece’s Pictorial Anatomy of Ruin	132
3 Anatomizing the Body of a King: Knowledge, Conspiracy, and Spectrality in Julius Caesar	170
4 “My Memory Is Tired”: Coriolanus’s Forgetful Humanism	223
5 “Caesar’s Wing”: Negotiating the Myth of Rome in Cymbeline	248
6 World and Ruin in Antony and Cleopatra. An Epilogue	287
Bibliography	342
Index	366