

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Preface	x
1 Reading Habermas	1
Habermas and contemporary philosophy	5
Habermas and anti-foundationalism	8
Habermas and the continental tradition	13
Hegelian themes	14
Kantian themes	17
Marxian themes	19
2 Habermas and the Heritage of Critical Theory	22
Social rationality in Marx	24
Social rationality from Weber to the Frankfurt School	32
The early Habermas and critical theory	41
The dialectic of social rationality: a brief recapitulation	59
3 Habermas and the Reconstruction of Critical Theory	62
Critical theory criticised	62
Revisions in the project	69
The reconstruction of critical theory: stages in the development of Habermas's communication theory	73
1. Communicative competence, systematically distorted communication, and the ideal speech situation	74
2. Discourse and truth as consensus	81
3. Universal pragmatics and social evolution	87
4 Habermas on Communicative Action and Rationality	106

5 Habermas and the Prospects of Critical Theory	137
Marx's paradigm of production: a brief recapitulation	141
Interpretations of Marx's paradigm of production: scientific versus critical Marxism	142
Critical theory and critical Marxism	148
Production versus communication as paradigms for radical theory	151
X Habermas's paradigm of communication: a critique	156
Habermas and Marx: the future of radical theory	166
 Notes and References	 175
 Index	 190