

---

contents

acknowledgments		ix
introduction		1
chapter 1	Images, Power, and Politics	9
	Representation	12
	The Myth of Photographic Truth	16
	Images and Ideology	22
	How We Negotiate the Meaning of Images	26
	The Value of Images	34
	Image Icons	36
chapter 2	Viewers Make Meaning	49
	Producers' Intended Meanings	52
	Aesthetics and Taste	56
	Collecting, Display, and Institutional Critique	62
	Reading Images as Ideological Subjects	69
	Encoding and Decoding	72
	Reception and the Audience	75
	Appropriation and Cultural Production	82
	Reappropriation and Counter-Bricolage	86
chapter 3	Modernity: Spectatorship, Power, and Knowledge	93
	The Subject in Modernity	94
	Spectatorship	101
	Discourse and Power	104
	The Gaze and the Other	111
	The Gaze in Psychoanalysis	120

	Gender and the Gaze	123
	Changing Concepts of the Gaze	130
chapter 4	Realism and Perspective: From Renaissance Painting to Digital Media	141
	Visual Codes and Historical Meaning	143
	Questions of Realism	145
	The History of Perspective	151
	Perspective and the Body	157
	The Camera Obscura	161
	Challenges to Perspective	164
	Perspective in Digital Media	174
chapter 5	Visual Technologies, Image Reproduction, and the Copy	183
	Visual Technologies	183
	Motion and Sequence	185
	Image Reproduction: The Copy	190
	Walter Benjamin and Mechanical Reproduction	195
	The Politics of Reproducibility	199
	Copies, Ownership, and Copyright	204
	Reproduction and the Digital Image	212
chapter 6	Media in Everyday Life	223
	The Masses and Mass Media	224
	Media Forms	229
	Broadcast, Narrowcast, and Webcast Media	233
	The History of Mass Media Critiques	236
	Media and Democratic Potential	242
	Media and the Public Sphere	247
	National and Global Media Events	250
	Contemporary Media and Image Flows	255
chapter 7	Advertising, Consumer Cultures, and Desire	265
	Consumer Societies	266
	Envy, Desire, and Belonging	275

	Commodity Culture and Commodity Fetishism	279
	Brands and Their Meanings	289
	The Marketing of Coolness	293
	Anti-Ads and Culture Jamming	300
chapter 8	Postmodernism, Indie Media, and Popular Culture	307
	Postmodernism and its Visual Cultures	311
	Addressing the Postmodern Subject	316
	Reflexivity and Postmodern Identity	322
	Pastiche, Parody, and the Remake	328
	Indie Media and Postmodern Approaches to the Market	334
	Postmodern Space, Geography, and the Built Environment	337
chapter 9	Scientific Looking, Looking at Science	347
	The Theater of Science	350
	Images as Evidence: Cataloguing the Body	355
	Imaging the Body's Interior: Biomedical Personhood	364
	Vision and Truth	369
	Imaging Genetics	373
	The Digital Body	377
	Visualizing Pharmaceuticals	381
chapter 10	The Global Flow of Visual Culture	389
	The Global Subject and the Global Gaze	390
	Cultural Imperialism and Beyond	397
	Global Brands	401
	Concepts of Globalization	404
	Visuality and Global Media Flow	407
	Indigenous and Diasporic Media	413
	Borders and Franchises: Art and the Global	417
	glossary	431
	picture credits	467
	index	477