

CONTENTS

Prefatory Note	ix
Introduction	xi
I. Nietzsche's Understanding of Eternal Return: Eternity	1
Explication of the Problem	1
The Problem of Duration	5
Eternal Return as the Irreversibility of Time:
Recurrence as Cycle	8
Eternal Return as Permanence for Becoming:
Recurrence as "Being"	13
Nihilism and the Thought of Eternal Return:
The Eternal Return of the Same as the
Most Extreme Form of Nihilism	16
The Moment	21
II. Return: Recurrence of the Same	29
The Basic Problem	29
Three Interpretations	45
A Fact Belonging to Physics	45
An Impossibility	51
A Thought	56
III. The Same	61
The Problem of the Self	61
The Self and Eternal Return	69
The Self: Not a Subject or an Ego	73
The Will as a Possible Basis for the Self:
Will and the Will to Power	76

CONTENTS

The Self and the Will to Power as Art	82
The Self and the Superman	86
The Will to Power and Eternal Return	94
IV. Time and Eternal Return	103
Eternal Return and Traditional Theories of Time	103
The Traditional Relation of Time to Eternity	109
The Significance and Implications of Nietzsche's "‘There Is No End’" for a Theory of Time	112
Time	116
Instantaneity	117
Irreversibility	117
Differentiation of the Modes of Past, Present, and Future	119
Neutrality	120
Time and Eternity in the Eternal Return of the Same	123
Selected Bibliography	129
Index	131