

Contents

Preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xv
1. Rationality and Irrationality in Modern Thought	1
The Problem: Weber Versus Pareto on Irrationality	1
“Rationality” and Modern Philosophy	5
Weber’s Ambivalence	9
Current Social Theory and Irrationality	17
Social Thought, Politics, and Irrationality	23
The Politics of the Irrational	30
Irrationality in Social Action	32
Addendum on Clarification of Concepts	35
2. Toward a Hermeneutic of Weber	39
Limits of Contemporary Theorizing	39
Current Standards of Criticism as Applied to Weber	42
Weber as Scholar	47
Weber’s Thought and Mannheim’s Weltanschauungslehre	50
The Aesthetic Dimension to Social Theory: Whitehead, Simmel, and Others	56
Retrieving Weltanschauungen	69
Notes Toward a Hermeneutic of Weber	71
“Pre-Hermeneutical” Concerns: Scholarship Past and Present	77
Lessons of Classical and Contemporary Hermeneutics	80
Addendum: A Note on the Gadamer-Habermas Debate	86
3. Weber’s Aporia: Irrationality and Social Action	91
Bibliographical Prologue	91
Early Works (1889–1897)	99
Recovery, and Early Methodological Essays	112

Interlude: Practical Limits to Adequate Hermeneutics	135
A Note on Scholarly Response to Weber's Terminology	141
4. The Middle Period	145
Roscher and "Objectivity"	145
The Protestant Ethic	157
Knies and Irrationality	172
Logic in the Cultural Sciences	179
Recapitulation	183
5. Mature Works	186
Kategorienlehre	186
Zwischenbetrachtungen and Religious Rejections of the World	192
Economy and Society	200
6. Irrationality in Social Life Reconsidered	225
The Unacknowledged Dialogue of Weber and Pareto	225
A Curtain of Incomprehension: Pareto and Contemporary Thought	249
Conclusion	263
Bibliography	267
Index	291