

Contents

Preface	page xi
List of Abbreviations	xiv
Introduction	1
1. Imagining Society, Re-visioning "Israel"	8
i. Imagining Society	8
ii. The Social Entity of a Religious System	11
iii. Re-visioning (an) "Israel" in Particular	13
iv. "An Israel" and "a Judaism": A Social Metaphor in a Religious System	14
v. The Ecology of Judaisms and the Centrality of the Social Metaphor	14
PART I "Israel" in the First Statement of Judaism, 70–300 C.E.
2. "Israel" in Relationship to Heaven	21
i. The Judaism of Sanctification	21
ii. The Mishnah's System of Sanctification	28
iii. A Teleology without Eschatology for an "Israel" beyond History	32
3. "Israel" in Relationship to "Non-Israel"	38
i. "Israel" for the Mishnah's Authorship	38
ii. "Israel" in the System of the Mishnah	40
iii. The Repertoire of Candidates: Toward an Inductive Survey of the Mishnah, Tractate Abot, the Tosefta, Sifra, Sifré to Numbers, Sifré to Deuteronomy, and Related Writings	44
	vii

iv.	“Israel” as Sui Generis	46
v.	“Israel” as an Extended Family	47
vi.	“Israel” as People or Nation	50
	The Supernatural Dimension
	The Political and Historical Dimension
vii.	“Israel” as Not-Samaritan, Not-Heretic	55
viii.	“Israel” as Israelite	55
ix.	“Israel” as a Caste within “Israel” the People	56
x.	From Words to Sentences	57
4.	“Israel” in the Mishnah, the Tosefta, and Tractate Abot: A Probe	60
i.	Explicit and Implicit Social Entities in the Mishnah and Tosefta	60
ii.	A Textual Probe of “Israel” as Sui Generis	72
iii.	“Israel” and Social Metaphors in Tractate Abot	77
5.	The First Phase of the Judaism of the Dual Torah and Its Social Metaphors	83
i.	“Israel” as Chosen Metaphor	83
ii.	Transitive “Israel”	86
iii.	Social Metaphors of Judaism without Christianity	88
iv.	Social Metaphors of Sages without Authority	89
PART II	“Israel” in the Second Statement of Judaism, 300–600 C.E.
6.	“Israel” on Its Own Terms	95
i.	From the Mishnah to the Yerushalmi	95
ii.	The Challenge of Christianity	97
iii.	Sages from the Mishnah to the Yerushalmi	106
iv.	The Judaism of Sanctification and Salvation in the Yerushalmi, Genesis Rabbah, Leviticus Rabbah, and Related Writings	108
7.	“Israel” as Family	112
i.	The Metaphor of the Family, “Israel”	112
ii.	A Social Metaphor and a Field Theory of Society: “Israel” and the Social Contract	113
iii.	The Patriarchs and Matriarchs and the Family of “Israel” in Genesis Rabbah	116
iv.	Merit in Genesis Rabbah	131
v.	The Nations as Families in Genesis Rabbah	139
8.	“Israel” as Family and Also Singular Nation	145
i.	Mixing Metaphors	145

ii.	The Family-Nation and the Confrontation with Christianity	145
iii.	“Israel” as People or Nation in Leviticus Rabbah	149
iv.	“Israel” as Both Family and Polity in Genesis Rabbah and Leviticus Rabbah: The Special Problem of the Confrontation with Rome	153
v.	Mixed Metaphor, Uniform Outcome	163
9.	“Israel” as Sui Generis	164
i.	From Sentence to Statement: “Israel” in the Here and Now	164
ii.	The Rules of Nature, the Rules of History, and the Supernatural Governance of “Israel” in Leviticus Rabbah	165
iii.	The Sage and “Israel”’s Governance, and “Israel”’s Salvation in the Yerushalmi	174
10.	The Second Phase of the Judaism of the Dual Torah and Its Social Metaphors	184
i.	Intransitive “Israel”	184
ii.	Social Metaphors of Judaism despite Christianity	186
iii.	Social Metaphors of an Authorship with Authority	192
iv.	Theological Anthropology and Theological Sociology: The Society of the Sages and the Metaphor of “Israel”	203

PART III Same Metaphors, Other Systems

11.	Other Judaisms and Their Social Metaphors	207
i.	“Israel” and the Social Rules of Judaisms	207
ii.	No Judaism without an “Israel”	209
	Axiom: An “Israel” serves as the social component of a Judaic system.
iii.	The Social Rules of Judaisms: Three Propositions	209
iv.	The Case of Paul and “Israel” after the Spirit	215
	Proposition 1: The shape and meaning imputed to the social component, “Israel,” will conform to the larger interests of the system and in detail express the system’s main point.
v.	The Cases of Philo and of the Essenes of Qumran	220
	Proposition 2: What an “Israel” is depends on who wants to know. Philosophers imagine a philosophical “Israel,” and politicians conceive a political “Israel.”

vi.	The Cases of Paul, Philo, the Essenes of Qumran, and the Sages of the Dual Torah	229
	Proposition 3: The systemic importance of the category "Israel" depends on the generative problematic – the urgent question – of the system builders, and not on their social circumstance. The place of "Israel" within the self-evidently true response offered by the system will prove congruent to the logic of the system and that alone.
12.	Society and System	239
i.	How History Matters in Systemic Analysis: The Case of an "Israel"	239
ii.	The Cases of Paul, the Essenes of Qumran, and the Sages of the Dual Torah	240
	Hypothesis: The system builders' social (including political) circumstance defines the generative problematic that imparts self-evidence to the systemically definitive logic, encompassing its social component.
iii.	Society and System	247
	General Index	252
	Index to Biblical and Talmudic References	256