

Contents

1	Introductory Remarks. When Did We Start Caring About Digital Aesthetics? . . . . .	1
1.1	Technology, Entertainment and Design . . . . .	1
1.2	Technological Progress and Social Interactions . . . . .	3
1.3	Design-Thinking, Innovation and Experimentalism in Public Policy . . . . .	4
1.4	The Aesthetics of Digital Democratic Governance . . . . .	6
1.5	The Structure of the Volume . . . . .	7
	References . . . . .	12
2	The Aesthetics of Consumer Tech . . . . .	13
2.1	The Four Parameters of Consumer Tech . . . . .	13
2.2	What Do We Know About Time . . . . .	14
2.3	The Apotheosis of Kronos . . . . .	16
2.4	The Cult of Velocity . . . . .	19
2.5	Digital Accelerationism and Working Poverty . . . . .	21
2.6	Immediate Feedback and Digital Economy . . . . .	22
2.7	Fast Technology, Changing Language . . . . .	24
2.8	The ‘Ecstasy of Digital Speed’ and Dazzling Expectations . . . . .	28
2.9	Fool-Proof Technology . . . . .	29
2.10	Simplicity Equals Sanity . . . . .	31
2.11	Digital Singularity . . . . .	32
2.12	Digital Gratuity . . . . .	35
2.13	The Costs of Consumer Tech: Ownership, Quality and Contentment . . . . .	37
2.14	From Digital to Analogue, No Return . . . . .	40
	References . . . . .	43
3	Digital Aesthetics in the Public Sphere . . . . .	49
3.1	The Problem of Replicability . . . . .	49
3.2	The Inclusivity Dilemma . . . . .	50

3.3	The Longevity of Law . . . . .	54
3.4	Generality Vs Singularity . . . . .	58
3.5	Reliability and Digital Governance . . . . .	60
3.6	Digital Publicity . . . . .	62
3.7	Democratic Dissonances . . . . .	64
3.8	Post-Consultation Feedback. The Case of the French Convention Citoyenne Pour le Climat . . . . .	66
3.9	The Aftermath of the Conference on the Future of Europe . . . . .	67
3.10	The Paradox of Digital Democracy: The ‘Digital Undemocratic’ . . . . .	69
	References . . . . .	72
4	The Digital Undemocratic: Dazzling Expectations vs Disappointing Outcomes . . . . .	77
4.1	The Rhetoric of Digitally Efficient Government . . . . .	77
4.2	The Structural Argument: ‘Innovation Theaters’ and ‘Knowledge-Scarcity’ . . . . .	80
4.3	The Procedural Argument: Wicked Problems and Public Regulation . . . . .	84
4.4	The Cultural Argument: Public Sector and Market Competition . . . . .	86
4.5	The Pandemic Acceleration of Digital Government . . . . .	89
4.6	From Performance to Approach: The Design of Virtual Democratic Spaces . . . . .	91
	References . . . . .	93
5	Re-Conceptualising the Aesthetics of Digital Democracy . . . . .	97
5.1	A Look Into a More Technological Future . . . . .	97
5.2	Protecting Complexities . . . . .	102
5.3	The Aesthetics of Virtual Democratic Interactions. Towards a New Narrative of Digital Democratic Spaces . . . . .	105
5.4	Re-Framing Digital Consultations: Interactions Not Outcomes . . .	110
5.5	Game-Design and Digital Democratic Spaces . . . . .	117
5.6	Concluding Remarks . . . . .	120
	References . . . . .	123