

CONTENTS

ABBREVIATIONS	viii
LIST OF PLATES	ix
MAPS	xiii
PREFACE	xix
NOTES ON TRANSCRIPTION	xxiv
I: ORIGINS IN INDIA
1. The Rediscovery of Indian Buddhism	1
2. Śākyamuni: Buddha of the Present World-Age	5
3. The Concepts of Saṃsāra and Nirvāṇa
a. The Nature of Śākyamuni's Enlightenment	11
b. The Doctrine of Nonself and the Dharma -Theory	19
c. The Relativity of Philosophical Explanations	23
4. The Preeminence of Buddhahood
a. Śākyamuni as Buddha and Man	29
b. The Cult of Relics	35
5. The Buddhist Community	39
II: LATER DEVELOPMENTS IN INDIA
1. Buddhism becomes a Pan-Asian Religion	44
2. The Buddha Image
a. The Earliest Representations in Human Form	47
b. Can there be more than one Buddha at the same time?	52
3. Bodhisattvas
a. Their Function as Quasi-Celestial Beneficent Beings	58
b. The Career of a Bodhisattva as a Human Aspiration	61
c. An Evaluation of a Bodhisattva's Skill in Means (upāyakauśalya)	66
d. Bodhisattvas in Paradise	71
e. All Buddhas and Bodhisattvas essentially one and the same	76
4. The Three Turnings of the Wheel of the Doctrine	79
a. The First Turning	80
b. The Second Turning	81
c. The Third Turning	94
d. The Theory of Buddha-folds	109
e. The Theory of the Buddha-embryo	111
f. The Theory of Buddha-bodies	115
III: TANTRIC BUDDHISM
1. Connections with the more conventional Mahāyāna	117
2. The Vajrayāna as a new and distinct "way"	128
3. Vajrapāṇi (alias Vajradhara) becomes preeminent	134
4. Magical Formulas	141

5. The Votaries of the Tantras	144
6. Various Kinds of Tantras
a. Tantras relatable to Mahāyāna Sūtras	147
b. Tantras with non-Buddhist Associations	152
7. Tantric Feasts	160
8. The Argument for Implicit Interpretations	170
9. The Importance of one's chosen Teacher	176
10. The Later Amalgamation and Promulgation of Tantric Teachings	180
11. Buddha-Families	189
12. The Maṇḍala	198
13. Initiations and Consecrations
a. Initiation as distinct from "Ordination"	213
b. The "Descent" of Absolute Wisdom	220
c. The Use of Jars in Consecration Ceremonies	223
d. The Order of Consecrations in various classes of Tantras	228
e. The Power of Coercion	235
f. The Process of Self-Consecration	240
14. Further Consecrations
a. Interpretations of the Higher Consecrations, Scholastic, Lyrical and Ritual	243
b. Scholastic Equations in Sets of Four	247
c. The Higher Consecrations according to the Tradition of Hevajra	254
d. Consecration as a Psychophysical Process	262
e. References to Higher Consecrations in Yoga Tantras	266
f. The Problem of Textual Obscurity	270
15. Special Concepts of Tantric Yogins
a. Buddhahood as Twofold rather than Fivefold	278
b. Wisdom and Means	281
c. The Cult of the Human Body	288
d. The Coalescence of all concepts through the practice of Tantric Yoga	294
IV: BUDDHIST COMMUNITIES IN INDIA AND BEYOND
1. Traces of Buddhism in India
a. Continuity in Buddhist Monastic Life	305
b. The apparent lateness of Iconographic Representation in relationship with the relevant texts	315
2. Traces of Buddhism in Central Asia
a. The Historical Background	324
b. Khotan	331
c. Other Important Sites	343
d. The Tibetan Occupation	350
3. Buddhism in Nepal
a. The Early Period	362
b. The Later Period	375

V: THE CONVERSION OF TIBET

1. Political and Social Factors
a. The Rulers of Tibet	381
b. The Cultural Effects of Territorial Expansion	386
c. Early Situations leading to the later emergence of rNying-ma-pas and Bonpos	396
d. Royal Inscriptions and Edicts	408
2. Religious Factors
a. Factions and Disputes	426
b. Varieties of Teaching	436
c. Early Tibetan Tantras	451
d. Freedom from Restraint	463
3. The Combination of Politics and Religion
a. The Rulers of Western Tibet	470
b. The Founding of Religious Orders	485
c. Final Reflections	508
PLATES	529
BIBLIOGRAPHY	617
INDEX	634