

Contents

List of Illustrations	xi
List of Tables	xiii
Preface	xv
Abbreviations	xix

PART I. THE UNIVERSITIES OF ITALY

1. Bologna and Padua	3
The Italian University	3
Bologna: Second Half of the Twelfth Century	5
Bologna in the Sixteenth Century	14
Padua, 1222	21
Padua after 1509	31
2. Naples, Siena, Rome, and Perugia	41
Naples, 1224	41
Siena, 1246	45
Rome, 1240s	56
Perugia, 1308	64
3. The Second Wave: Pisa, Florence, Pavia, Turin, Ferrara, and Catania	70
Pisa, 1343	70
Florence, 1348	77
Pavia, 1361	82
Turin, 1411–1413	93
Ferrara, 1442	99
Catania, 1445	106

4. The Third Wave: Macerata, Salerno, Messina, and Parma 109
- Macerata, 1540–1541 109
- Salerno, c. 1592 117
- Messina, 1596 121
- Parma, 1601 126
- Incomplete Universities 137
- Paper Universities 140
- Conclusion 142
5. The University in Action 143
- The Organization of Instruction 143
- Latin 151
- Disputations 152
- Civil Authority and Student Power 157
- Professors 159
- Student Living 166
- Residence Colleges 169
- The Doctorate 172
- The Cost of Degrees 178
- Alternate Paths to the Doctorate 180
- Doctorates from Counts Palatine 183
- The Counter Reformation 186

PART II. TEACHING AND RESEARCH

6. The Studia Humanitatis 199
- Grammar and Rhetoric in the Fourteenth-Century
University 199
- Humanists Avoid the University, 1370–1425 205
- Humanists Join the University, 1425–1450 209
- Humanistic Studies Flourish, 1450–1520 214
- Court and Classroom: Changing Employment for Humanists 222
- Humanistic Studies at Other Universities 225
- The Sixteenth Century 229
- Curricular Texts 236
- Teaching and Research 241
- Humanists in the University: A Summation 247
7. Logic 249
- Logic at Padua 250
- Logic at Other Universities 253

Teaching and Research	257
Demonstrative Regress	263
Conclusion	266
8. Natural Philosophy	267
Aristotelian Curricular Texts	269
Greek Texts and Commentaries	271
Inanimate World, Scientific Method, and the Soul	279
The Debate on the Immortality of the Intellective Soul	281
The Immortality of the Soul after Pomponazzi	293
Platonic Philosophy in the Universities	297
Continuity and Decline of Aristotelian Natural Philosophy	310
9. The Medical Curriculum	314
Medieval Medical Knowledge	314
The Medical Curriculum in 1400	318
Medical Humanism	324
The Anatomical Renaissance	328
Bodies for Dissection	332
University Anatomy after Vesalius	334
Clinical Medicine	341
Medical Botany	342
Conclusion	351
10. Theology, Metaphysics, and Sacred Scripture	353
From Mendicant Order Studia to Faculties of Theology	353
Faculties of Theology	357
Doctorates of Theology	360
Theology, Metaphysics, and Sacred Scripture at the University of Padua	366
Universities Teaching Theology Continuously	372
Universities Reluctant to Teach Theology	381
Erasmus' Doctorate of Theology	384
Teaching Texts	385
The Reputation of Theology	387
Italian Convent and University Theology, 1400–1600	389
11. Moral Philosophy	393
Moral Philosophy in the Late Middle Ages	393
Humanistic Moral Philosophy at the University of Florence	395
Moral Philosophy in Other Universities	398
Teaching Moral Philosophy	403

12. Mathematics	408
Statutory Texts	408
The Renaissance of Mathematics	413
Professors of Astrology, Astronomy, and Mathematics	415
Luca Pacioli	426
The Progress of Mathematics	427
13. Law	430
Mos Italicus	431
Teaching Texts	434
Humanistic Jurisprudence	436
The Decline of Canon Law	443
Padua and Bologna	447
Pavia and Rome	457
Siena and the Sozzini	460
Florence and Pisa	465
The Other Universities	469
Conclusion	472

PART III. RECESSIONAL

14. The Decline of Italian Universities	477
Concern for the Universities	477
Competition from Religious Order Schools: The Jesuit School at Padua	479
Competition from Religious Order Schools: Schools for Nobles	483
Degrees from Local Colleges of Law and Medicine	484
Private Teaching and Other Pedagogical Abuses	486
Private Anatomy Teaching at Padua	491
The Shrinking Academic Calendar	495
Financial Problems	497
Faculty Provincialism	498
Student Violence	500
Positive Developments	505
A Weakened Institution	508
Conclusion	509
Appendix: Faculty Size and Student Enrollments	513
Bibliography	517
Index	569