

Contents

Foreword by The Most Reverend Trevor Huddleston, CR Bishop of Mauritius	page 7
Editor's Preface	11
Introduction by John Webster	13

PART ONE: THE EMERGING CHURCH

1 Jesus Christ—The Man for Others	27
2 The Church in the World	30
3 Politics and Religion	33
4 The Theology of Liberation	34

PART TWO: THE STRUGGLE FOR JUSTICE IN SOUTH AFRICA

5 Crisis and Response	39
6 The South African problem and Black Protest	40
7 Challenge and Invitation to White Students	42
8 To the White South African Community	44
9 To the South African Broadcasting Corporation	45
10 The South African Council of Churches—Our Work at the Grassroots	46
11 In Defence of the SACC	49
12 Where I Stand	52
13 Bishop Tutu's Testimony	55

PART THREE: WINDOWS INTO SOUTH AFRICA

14 Steve Biko—A Tribute	61
15 Robert Mangaliso Sobukwe	65
16 Polarisation	67
17 Banned People	68
18 Detention without Trial	69
19 Urban Unrest	70
20 Armed soldiers on routine police matters	71
21 A better approach	72
22 The Pass Laws	72

23	Christmas	74
24	Crossroads	74
25	R.14,000,000 and all that	76
26	Black Consciousness and Car Driving	78
27	A Message to Journalists	79
28	The Black Journalist and the Black Community	81
29	An Easter Message	82

PART FOUR: FREEDOM IS COMING

30	The Certainty of Freedom	87
31	The Black Mood Today	89
32	The Impact of the Soweto Riots	92
33	Free Nelson Mandela	94
34	Black Consumer Power—One lever for Change	97
35	My Vision for South Africa	99

PART FIVE: THE CHALLENGE OF THE EIGHTIES

36	Survival as a Human Society	105
37	Future Challenges: South Africa	106
38	The Affluent West and the Third World	111
39	A Prophetic Church and Human Rights in the Third World	113
40	Divided Churches	115
41	Women and the Church	119
42	Children's Rights	121
43	Into the Eighties	123

	Bibliography	125
--	--------------	-----

(A section of photographs appears between pages 64 and 65)