

CONTENTS

1. INTERPRETATION AND BIBLICAL
INTERPRETATION	I
What is interpretation?	I
The aims of interpreters	5
Biblical interpretation and biblical scholarship	15
The concordat in modern theology	26
Prospects	33
2. CRITICISM AND THE DEATH OF SCRIPTURE	44
History, myth, and theology: D. F. Strauss	44
Rational criticism of Christianity: H. S. Reimarus	52
The English Church: Bishop Colenso	57
3. HISTORY AND THE GROWTH OF KNOWLEDGE	62
Strauss, Baur, and beyond	62
Historical scholarship and theological interpretation	68
Wellhausen and the Old Testament	76
Liberal Protestantism and beyond	88
4. HISTORY OF RELIGIONS AND HISTORY OF
TRADITIONS	93
History and history of religion	93
History of traditions and Old Testament theology	96
From history of traditions to New Testament theology	104
Bultmann and beyond	110
For and against the 'new quest'	118
History of religions research	124
5. THEOLOGY AND THE SOCIAL SCIENCES	133
Faith and reason	133

A new era	138
Three examples	147
Within and beyond the historical pale	155
6. THEOLOGY, HISTORY, AND LITERATURE	167
Biblical scholarship and theology	167
Historical criticism and theological interpretation	172
History and hermeneutics	178
The necessity of theory	185
Historical supports for theological proposals	190
The alliance weakens	192
Alternative forms of theological interpretation	197
7. LITERARY STUDY OF THE BIBLE	203
Different aims and methods	203
Earlier literary interests	205
Back to literature	211
The literary frame of reference	214
The breakthrough	221
The Gospels as literature and history	227
The teaching of Jesus	239
Literary theory and theology	248
A parallel case	260
8. CONCLUSION: INTERPRETATION AND THE LIFE OF SCRIPTURE	269
Texts, authors, and readers	269
Religious and non-religious aims	271
Biblical criticism and Christian theology	272
Theological interpretation	273
The necessity of theological interpretation	274
The character of theological interpretation	275
Theory and theology	276

Faith and reason	281
Scholarship and faith	283
The uses of methods	285
Theology today	289
Theology tomorrow	289
Loss and gain	294
Annotated Index of Names	297
Index of Other Names	336
Subject Index	338