

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Preface	ix
Introduction: The Sculptural Imagination and the Viewing of Sculpture	i
1 Classical Figures	24
A Sculptural Aesthetic	24
Surface Values: Canova	38
2 Modern Figures	61
Sculpture and Modernity	62
Rodin, Rilke and Sculptural Things	77
3 Modernist Objects and Plastic Form	103
Modernism and the Situation of Sculpture	104
The Problem of Sculptural Form	124
Sculpture as Object: Brancusi	132
4 Modernist Sculpture	145
The Idea of a Modern Sculpture	145
Sculpture as Collage, as Monster: David Smith	158
5 Minimalism and High Modernism	178
Literalism and Objecthood	178
Theatricality	188
Aesthetic Theory	199
6 The Phenomenological Turn	207
Sculpture and Phenomenological Theory	207
Perception and Presence	213
Merleau-Ponty and the Viewing of Art	224
7 The Performance of Viewing	235
The Staging of Sculpture: Morris	236
From Public to Private	244
The Siting of Sculpture: Serra	256

8	Objects and Spaces	269
	Specific Objects: Judd	269
	'A Single Thing . . . Open and Extended'	284
	Space, Time and Situation	296
9	The Negated Presence of Sculpture	311
	A Sculptural Imagination: Andre	311
	Place, Concept and Desire	322
	Borderlines, 'Nothing, Everything': Hesse	335
	Conclusion: Arenas and Objects of Sculpture: Bourgeois	357
	Notes	380
	Photograph Credits	411
	Index	412