

Contents

List of figures and tables	page vii
Acknowledgments	viii
Introduction	I
PART I THE SEARCH FOR THE COMMON GOOD: BEYOND THE NORMATIVE AND THE NATURAL
1 From normative theory to diagnostic practice	II
2 The failings of political naturalism	41
3 The historization of politics	67
4 “The time is coming when we will have to relearn about politics”	89
PART II THREE DIAGNOSTIC THINKERS IN PURSUIT OF THE COMMON GOOD
5 Carl Schmitt: “all essential concepts are not normative but existential”	117
6 Hannah Arendt: “does politics still have a meaning?”	146
7 Michel Foucault: “could you define the sense you give the word ‘political’?”	173

PART III THE FRAGILITY OF THE COMMON GOOD

8	“A fundamental change in political paradigms”	203
9	Politics as a domain of uncertainty	231
	Bibliography	251
	Index	258

Figures and tables

Figure 9.1	The parallelogram of intentions	page 237
Figure 9.2	Trajectory of problems	249
Table 8.1	Low vs. high technology	216
Table 9.1	A typology of problems	248