

Contents

- one Introduction Concepts and confusion - the English scene in 1900 1
The state of English in 1900 – The fallacies: the classical fallacy – The Old English fallacy – Composition and the imitative fallacy – The moral fallacy – Correlation and subject status – Grammar and the content fallacy
- two 1900-20 Progress or paralysis? Some voices in the wilderness 26
Social implications: the Revised Code mentality – New Board initiative 1902-10 – The fallacies persist: grammar – Liberal advocates: Edmond Holmes, Montessori and ‘activity’ – English and the Recapitulation theory – Progress in attitudes to writing: O’Grady, Greening Lamborn and Finch – Caldwell Cook – Dorothy Tudor Owen and the psychology of expression – School poetry 1900-20 – Secondary English 1910-20 – The 1914 Suggestions: progress 1900-20
- three 1920-30 The Board reports - creative consolidation and advance 66
The 1921 Report – New moves in speech work – George Sampson – Textbooks: progress in composition – Creative advances: Nunn, Lamborn and Tomkinson – Reaction: the progressives attacked – The social context and the silent revolution – The Scholarship problem – The Dalton Plan and ‘content’ attitudes – Other Board publications 1920-30
- four 1930-40 Reaction - old themes for new citizens 103
The Primary School Report – Further reaction: conservative misgivings – Pritchard and the senior schools – Textbooks: little change – English and the School Certificate – The problem of essay marking – Creative pressures: pupils’ verse writing – Achievements in the elementary schools – The New Criticism: Richards and Leavis – English and the mass media – A. J. Jenkinson’s survey – Citizenship concerns

Contents

five	1940-70 The New English - priorities and purpose in a democratic society	135
	Creative criteria – Marjorie Hourd and the Romantic view – A. F. Watts and the contribution of linguistic theory – The grammar debate continued – The challenge of the secondary moderns – The answer for the moderns (1) A. E. Smith – The answer for the moderns (2) David Holbrook – Creativity and democracy: culture or anarchy? – English or social studies? – Creative English and the grammar schools – Some official views: SSEC, Newsom and Plowden Reports – Children’s poetry writing – Creative writing: a definition – A new grammar? Further linguistic considerations – The new look in textbooks – Current attitudes to literature: the relevance of ‘the relevant’ – Texts and examinations: wider horizons? – Conclusion
	Bibliography	188
	Index	201