

CONTENTS

- I. THE BEGINNINGS 1-25
Introduction — Folk Plays — Church Drama — Dublin Guild Pageants—English Strolling Companies at Dublin and Youghal—Dublin Amateur Theatricals—Kilkenny Corpus Christi Plays
- II. IRELAND'S FIRST THEATRE 26-42
The Earl of Strafford's Court at Dublin—John Ogilby the Founder of the Irish Stage—The St. Werburgh Street Theatre—James Shirley and His Dublin Plays—The First Irish-born Dramatist—School and Strolling Plays in the Interregnum
- III. THE REVIVAL OF THE DUBLIN STAGE AFTER THE RESTORATION 43-61
John Ogilby and the Office of Master of the Revels in Ireland—Dublin in the Later Seventeenth Century—Dublin Castle and Its Literary Coterie—The First Smock Alley Theatre—A Gala Private Performance of the First Restoration 'Heroic Play'—The Initial Success of Ogilby
- IV. IRISH THEATRICALS FROM 1663 TO THE REVOLUTION OF 1688 62-98
The Brilliant Première of Pompey—Ogilby's Departure from Ireland, Morgan His Deputy—The Fall of the Smock Alley Playhouse Galleries—Jesuit Drama at New Ross and Cashel—Morgan's Departure from Ireland, Ogilby's Death, Ashbury the New Manager—The Smock Alley Theatre: Shakespearian Repertoire, Scenery, and Personnel in the 1670's, Trip to Oxford, Belphegor Performance, Trip to Scotland, the Company in the 1680's—A New Patent for the Office of Master of the Revels—The Renewal of Jesuit Drama at New Ross—The Decline and Closing of the Smock Alley Theatre
- V. STAGE ACTIVITY IN IRELAND UNDER KING WILLIAM III 99-117
The Reopening of the Theatre Royal in Dublin—Private Theatricals at the Bishop's Palace—The Growth of the Smock Alley Company—The Dublin Playhouse and Its Customs—The Smock Alley Players in Kilkenny—School Dramatics at Drogheda—The Personnel at the Theatre Royal, 1698-1702—The First Play on Dublin Manners

VI. THE SMOCK ALLEY THEATRE IN THE REIGN OF QUEEN ANNE	118-42
The Growth of Dublin—The Actor Thurmond's First Escapade— Farquhar's Visit—Thurmond's Further Escapades and Desertion —Death of Verbruggen the Tragedian—The Company Roster in 1708—Dublin's First Guest Stars from London—The First Theatre Riot in Ireland—Elrington's Affiliation—Dispute between Thurmond and the Sharers—'Government Nights'—The First Irish Provincial Theatre at Cork—Ashbury's Trip to England— The Smock Alley Theatre: a Governmental Institution
VII. THE DUBLIN STAGE IN THE LAST YEARS OF ASHBURY'S MANAGEMENT: 1714 TO 1720	143-78
Fashionable Life in Early Georgian Dublin—The Theatre Royal: Its Audience, Productional Conditions, Manager, Acting Per- sonnel, and Repertoire in the Fall of 1714—Celebration of George I's Coronation and William III's Birthday Anniversary— Escapade of Trefusis—Decimation of the Smock Alley Company —Disturbances at the Theatre Royal—Aston's Shows under the Lord Mayor's Licence—Charles Shadwell and His Smock Alley Plays: Irish Background, Patriotism, Stage Conventions, Per- formances, Casts—Dramatics at Dr. Sheridan's School—A New Patent for the Office of Master of the Revels—Personnel Changes at Smock Alley—The Death of Ashbury: End of an Era—The Theatre Royal in 1720
APPENDIX A. Documents relating to the Office of Master of the Revels in Ireland, 1660-1684	179-93
APPENDIX B. Documents relating to the Case of John Thurmond vs. the Patentee and Sharers of the Theatre Royal, Dublin: 1713	194-203
APPENDIX C. Plays acted at the Dublin Theatres, 1637- 1720	204-6
APPENDIX D. Actors and Actresses at the Dublin Theatres, 1637-1720	207-9
BIBLIOGRAPHY	210-17
INDEX	219-27