

Contents

Definitions and Introduction	ix
1 The Predestinated Will	1
St. Augustine	3
John Calvin	4
The Thirty-Nine Articles and the Westminster Confession	8
Two Calvinist Poets: Michael Wigglesworth and Edward Taylor	14
Later American Calvinism	19
Practical Accommodations by the Puritans	25
2 The Predestinated Will in American Fiction of the Nineteenth Century	28
Nathaniel Hawthorne	29
Herman Melville	37
Mary Wilkins Freeman	44
Emily Dickinson and the Hope of Conversion	48
Λ 3 Nineteenth-Century Authors Actively Hostile to Calvinistic Predestination	61
Charles Brockden Brown	62
Oliver Wendell Holmes	64
Harriet Beecher Stowe	76
Mark Twain	80
4 The Law for Things: Naturalism	86
Emile Zola and Claude Bernard	89
Thomas Malthus	95
Karl Marx	98
Charles Darwin	100
Herbert Spencer	102
William Graham Sumner	106
Henry George and Lester Ward	107
Hippolyte Taine	110
Sigmund Freud	112
5 Election and Natural Selection	115
The Prestige of Naturalism in America	115
The Fusion of Election and Natural Selection	120
Responsibilities of the Elect and of the Fittest	123
Religious Fervor of the Social Darwinists	127
America as a Destined Nation	128

6	Four Deterministic Novelists	132
	Stephen Crane	132
	Frank Norris	134
	Jack London	137
	Theodore Dreiser	141
7	Ellen Glasgow and William Faulkner: Vestigial Calvinism and Naturalism Combined	161
	Ellen Glasgow	162
	William Faulkner	177
8	Libertarian Philosophies Opposed to Predestination and Naturalistic Determinism	188
	Arminianism	188
	Deism	192
	Transcendentalism	195
	Philosophic Idealism	208
	Pragmatism	215
	Humanism	221
9	American Libertarian Novelists	224
	Influence of Russian Humanistic Novelists	224
	William Dean Howells	231
	Henry James	234
	Edith Wharton	239
	Willa Cather	241
	Ernest Hemingway	244
	Notes	249
	Bibliography	264
	Index	271