

Contents

List of Tables	vii
List of Figures	x
Notes on the Contributors	xi
List of Glossing Abbreviations	xiv
Introduction Mikko Höglund	1
Part I Structure
1 Constructions License Verb Frames Laura A. Michaelis	7
2 inside Out: Productive German Prepositional Objects as an Example of Complements Selecting Heads Jouni Rostila	34
3 A Cross-Linguistic Perspective on Complementation in the Tough Construction Jukka Havu and Mikko Höglund	52
Part II Variation
4 Variability in Clausal Verb Complementation: the Case of Admit Hubert Cuyckens and Frauke D'hoedt	77
5 The Embedded Negation Constraint and the Choice between More or Less Explicit Clausal Structures in English Günter Rohdenburg	101
6 'Wheedled Me into Lending Him My Best Hunter': Comparing the Emergence of the Transitive into -ing Construction in British and American English Juhani Rudanko	128
7 Prepositions and Sentential Complements: the Case of Waste and Spend Paul Rickman	141
8 From Doubt to Supposition: the Construction-Specific Meaning Change of the Finnish Verb Epäillä Jutta Salminen	157

Part III Boundaries

9	Multiple Sources in Language Change: the Role of Free Adjuncts and Absolutes in the Formation of English ACC- ing Gerundives Teresa Fanego	179
10	The Relation between Hypotactic Integration and Complementation in Cognitive Grammar Cristiano Broccias	206
11	Control in Free Adjuncts in English and French: a Corpus-Based Semantico-Pragmatic Account Patrick J. Duffley and Samuel Dion-Girardeau	227
	Index	249