

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	vii
Abbreviations	ix
Introduction	1
PART I
Dissolutions	23
1 Narrative and alterity	25
Narrating subject and narrated object	25
James, Cather and the Zwischen	29
Excendence	36
Crossing the present: some postmodern fiction	41
2 Ethics and unrepresentability	54
From Leavis to Levinas	54
Heart of Darkness and the limits of representation	57
Ethics and the postmodern sublime	66
Negativity and melancholia	76
3 Ethics and 'the dissolution of the novel'	85
Multiplicity and fission	85
The circuit-breakers: Johnson, Pinget	91
Bowen and 'the sphere of the common'	99

CONTENTS

PART II
Events	109
4 Proustian ethics	111
Levinas and Proust	111
The double logic of the Recherche	117
Marcel's others	123
5 Ethics of the event: Beckett	134
Ethical saying	134
The force of interruption: Beckett's later prose	140
Badiou and Beckett	146
PART III
Responses	159
6 Sensibility	161
A brief history of modern sensibility	161
Levinas, Bataille: sensibility and expenditure	164
Suffering and 'staging' in Rhys	167
Cornell, Nin and 'fissures in reality'	173
7 Reception and receptivity	186
Phenomenology and the ego	186
Blanchot and 'the innocence of reading'	189
The 'split-space' of reception	194
Karatani, Rushdie: reading East to West	201
Bibliography	213
Index	225