

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
INTRODUCTORY ESSAY	I

SONNETS PUBLISHED IN 1830.

To my Sister Mary	35
I. The Æolian Harp	36
II. The Kiss of Betrothal	37
III. Perseverance	38
IV. To the Nightingale	39
V. To the Lark	40
VI. The Ocean	41
VII. Love of Home	42
VIII. To —	43
IX. Vexation waits on passion's changeful glow	44
X. To —	45
XI. A Summer Twilight	46
XII. O be thou keen to guess when Flattery's near !	47
XIII. No trace is left upon the vulgar mind	48
XIV. Autumn	49
XV. The foot of Time so soundless never pass'd	50
XVI. (Supposed to be written by One on whom the Death of an excellent Woman has forced the Convic- tion of a Future State)	51
XVII. The same (continued)	52
XVIII. We cannot keep delight—we cannot tell	53
XIX. A Calm Evening	54
XX. Collision of the 'Ayr' and 'Comet' Steamboats	55
XXI. On startling some Pigeons	56
XXII. Seest thou her blushes, that like shadows sweet	57
XXIII. A Perverse Lover	58
XXIV. On a Picture of the Fates	59

	PAGE
XXV. Martial Ardour in Age	60
XXVI. On seeing a Child blush on his first View of a Corpse	61
XXVII. To the Robin	62
XXVIII. The Butterfly	63
XXIX. Death and its Antidote	64
XXX. O God, impart Thy blessing to my cries	65
XXXI. O ! it is sweet to weave aërial ties	66
XXXII. Decadence of Greece, 1830	67
XXXIII. To ———	68
XXXIV. An English Church	69
XXXV. A Mourning Lover	70
XXXVI. Joy came from Heaven	71
XXXVII. Silkworms and Spiders	72
XXXVIII. A Birthday	73
XXXIX. Greece : an Aspiration	74
XL. The Earthquake	75
XLI. The ' Cannon Fever '	76
XLII. The Prisoner	77
XLIII. The Portrait Painter	78
XLIV. Supposed to be written by any feeble-minded man meditating Self-Destruction	79
XLV. To A. H. H.	80
XLVI. A Forest Lake	81
XLVII. To ———	82
XLVIII. The Rainbow	83
XLIX. On a Genius of Lowly Estate	84

SONNETS PUBLISHED IN 1864 AND DEDICATED TO ALFRED TENNYSON.

L. Prefatory	85
LI. Great Localities. An Aspiration	86
LII. The same (continued)	87
LIII. The same (continued)	88
LIV. Token Lights. A Contrast	89
LV. Great Localities. Rome	90
LVI. The Moselle Boatman and his Daughter	91
LVII. The same (continued)	92
LVIII. The Blush of Constantine at the Council of Nice	93
LIX. Constantine's Amphitheatre at Trèves	94
LX. The Lion's Skeleton	95
LXI. The Arrow-King	96

CONTENTS.

XV

	PAGE
LXII. Cynotaphium	97
LXIII. The same (continued)	98
LXIV. The Vacant Cage	99
LXV. The same (continued)	100
LXVI. Bird-nesting	101
LXVII. The Lachrymatory	102
LXVIII. An Incident in a Church	103
LXIX. The same (continued)	104
LXX. On the Death of Two Little Children	105
LXXI. Goddard and Lycidas	106
LXXII. Hope beneath the Waters	107
LXXIII. The Buoy-Bell	108
LXXIV. The Rainbow	109
LXXV. Anastasis	110
LXXVI. The Death-Smile of Cowper	111
LXXVII. Apprehension of Blindness	112
LXXVIII. Loss and Restoration of Smell	113
LXXIX. On the Statue of Lord Byron	114
LXXX. The same (continued)	115
LXXXI. Mary Queen of Scots	116
LXXXII. The same (continued)	117
LXXXIII. Queen Elizabeth	118
LXXXIV. The Order of the Star of India	119
LXXXV. The same (continued)	120
LXXXVI. A Thought for March 1860	121
LXXXVII. Autocratic Policy of the Federal Americans	122
LXXXVIII. Possible Results of the Friends' Mission to St. Petersburg	123
LXXXIX. The same (continued)	124
XC. The Great Exhibition of 1862	125
XCI. The same (continued)	126
XCII. Hebron	127
XCIII. The same (continued)	128
XCIV. The same (continued)	129
XCV. The Telegraph Cable to India	130
XCVI. The South-Foreland Electric Light	131
XCVII. Greatness of England	132
XCVIII. The Wind-bound Mission	133
XCIX. The Thaw-Wind	134
C. An April Day	135
CI. The Charming of the East Wind	136
CII. Summer Evening. Retirement of a Garden.	137
CIII. Fulvia	138
CIV. The same (continued)	139

	PAGE
CV. An Application of the waxing Moon	140
CVI. The Planet and the Tree	141
CVII. Hesperus	142
CVIII. Nightingales	143
CIX. A Night Thought	144
CX. Resuscitation of Fancy	145
CXI. The Forest Glade	146
CXII. The Process of Composition	147
CXIII. Morning	148
CXIV. The Lattice at Sunrise	149
CXV. Wind on the Corn	150
CXVI. Harvest-home	151
CXVII. Ceasing of the Storm	152
CXVIII. Time and Twilight	153
CXIX. Dreams	154
CXX. The Marble Landing	155
CXXI. The Landing of King George I. of Greece at the Piræus	156
CXXII. To a Friend	157
CXXIII. Alexander the Great's Designs at Babylon frustrated	158
CXXIV. Julian's Attempt to Build on the Site of the Temple	159
CXXV. Terminus	160
CXXVI. Modern Termini	161
CXXVII. Christ and Orpheus	162
CXXVIII. The same (continued)	163
CXXIX. The same (continued)	164
CXXX. On certain Books	165
CXXXI. The same (continued)	166
CXXXII. A Dream	167
CXXXIII. A waking Thought	168
CXXXIV. The same (continued)	169
CXXXV. The Transfiguration	170
CXXXVI. Gethsemane	171
CXXXVII. The Critics at Gethsemane	172
CXXXVIII. The 'Higher Criticism'	173
CXXXIX. St. John's Eagle	174
CXL. The Luxor Nativity	175
CXLI. A non-natural Christmas	176
CXLII. A non-natural Easter	177
CXLIII. A non-natural Ascension and Whit-Sunday	178
CXLIV. German and French Gospels	179
CXLV. Leben Jesu and Vie de Jésus	180

CONTENTS.

xvii

	PAGE
CXLVI. The young Neologist at Bethlehem	181
CXLVII. How the 'Higher Criticism' blesses the Bible.	182

SONNETS PUBLISHED IN 1868.

CXLVIII. My First and Last Strophe	183
CXLIX. The Gold-Crested Wren	184
CL. The Holy Emerald	185
CLI. St. Augustine and Monica	186
CLII. Nehemiah's Night Ride	187
CLIII. Salome	188
CLIV. The same (continued)	189
CLV. Charlotte Corday	190
CLVI. Wölf and the Casket	191
CLVII. Philoctetes	192
CLVIII. Philoctetes	193
CLIX. On an old Roman Shield found in the Thames	194
CLX. On the same	195
CLXI. The Bier of the Christian Soldier	196
CLXII. The Illumination of the English and French Fleets at Portsmouth	197
CLXIII. On a Picture of Armida and Rinaldo, with the Decoy-Nymph	198
CLXIV. Art and Faith	199
CLXV. Lucy	200
CLXVI. Mary—a Reminiscence	201
CLXVII. The same (continued)	202
CLXVIII. Morning Sorrows	203
CLXIX. Minnie and her Dove	204
CLXX. Eustace and Edith	205
CLXXI. Make-believe Hunting	206
CLXXII. The School-Boy's Dream on the Night before the Holidays	207
CLXXIII. The Rogue's Nightmare	208
CLXXIV. Little Phœbe	209
CLXXV. Alice Wade versus Small-pox	210
CLXXVI. Ellen	211
CLXXVII. Annie and Ambrose	212
CLXXVIII. Going Home	213
CLXXIX. Jealousy	214
CLXXX. The Half-Rainbow	215
CLXXXI. The Parting-Gate	216
CLXXXII. Hero and Leander	217

	PAGE
CLXXXIII.	Drowned in the Tropics 218
CLXXXIV.	The Sea-Fairies' Answer 219
CLXXXV.	Vienna and In Memoriam 220
CLXXXVI.	To a Little Child who asked for a Laurel Crown 221
CLXXXVII.	A Recantation 222
CLXXXVIII.	Little Samuel 223
CLXXXIX.	A Brilliant Day 224
CXC.	The Starling 225
CXCI.	No Nightingales, or Compensation 226
CXCII.	The Wood-Rose 227
CXCIII.	The Home-Field. Evening 228
CXCIV.	Maggie's Star 229
CXCV.	A Summer Night in the Beehive 230
CXCVI.	The Bee-Wisp 231
CXCVII.	The Fly's Lecture 232
CXCVIII.	The Rookery 233
CXCIX.	On a Vase of Gold-fish 234
CC.	The Plea of the Shot Swallow 235
CCI.	The Last Sweep of the Scythe 236
CCII.	Harvest-home 237
CCIII.	The Storm—a Harvest Memory 238
CCIV.	The First Week in October 239
CCV.	From Harvest to January 240
CCVI.	Last Year's Harvest 241
CCVII.	The Steam Threshing-Machine 242
CCVIII.	The same (continued) 243
CCIX.	November Sunshine and the House-Flies 244
CCX.	The Drunkard's last Market 245
CCXI.	The late Pastor of Woldsby Ebrorum 246
CCXII.	On the Eclipse of the Moon of October 1865 247
CCXIII.	On an Annular Eclipse of the Sun in a Storm 248
CCXIV.	The Moon and Sin, an Illustration 249
CCXV.	Orion 250
CCXVI.	Fanaticism, a Night-Scene in the Open-Air 251
CCXVII.	Missing the Meteors, 1866 252
CCXVIII.	A Look-out for Thirty Years 253
CCXIX.	The Moorland Tree in the Garden 254
CCXX.	In and out of the Pine-Wood 255
CCXXI.	Silent Praise 256
CCXXII.	A Forest Sunset 257
CCXXIII.	Written at the Wood-Sale of Messrs. Blank and Co., non-resident Proprietors 258
CCXXIV.	The Needles' Lighthouse from Keyhaven, Hampshire 259

CONTENTS.

xix

		PAGE
CCXXV.	Danger—a Personification	260
CCXXVI.	A Farewell to the Isle of Wight	261
CCXXVII.	The White Horse of Westbury	262
CCXXVIII.	Beau Nash	263
CCXXIX.	A Photograph on the Red Gold	264
CCXXX.	On Board a Jersey Steamer	265
CCXXXI.	Vie de Jésus	266
CCXXXII.	Poor Hodge and the Rev. Sans Foy	267
CCXXXIII.	Pray, Think, and Strive	268

SONNETS PUBLISHED IN 1873 AND DEDICATED TO AGNES GRACE WELD.

CCXXXIV.	Little Sophy by the Seaside	269
CCXXXV.	The Butterfly and the Rose	270
CCXXXVI.	Nausicaa	271
CCXXXVII.	The Dying Sculptor	272
CCXXXVIII.	Free Greece	273
CCXXXIX.	The Seaside	274
CCXL.	The Barmouth Sea-Bridge	275
CCXLI.	On a Child's Eyes	276
CCXLII.	Little Nora	277
CCXLIII.	Our Mary and the Child-Mummy	278
CCXLIV.	Called from Bed	279
CCXLV.	Emmeline	280
CCXLVI.	The Hydraulic Ram	281
CCXLVII.	On the Monument of the Princess Elizabeth Stuart in Newport Church, Isle of Wight	282
CCXLVIII.	The Sick Orphan	283
CCXLIX.	The Missing Bride	284
CCL.	The Fir-Grove	285
CCLI.	The Axe forbidden	286
CCLII.	England's Honour	287
CCLIII.	Enforced War	288
CCLIV.	Dishonourable Peace	289
CCLV.	Arms Old and New	290
CCLVI.	The Bomb and the Organ	291
CCLVII.	To a French Poet and Refugee	292
CCLVIII.	The Ascent of Snowdon	293
CCLIX.	The Cattle Train	294
CCLX.	Human Sorrows	295
CCLXI.	The Artist on Penmaenmawr	296
CCLXII.	Cader Idris at Sunset	297

	PAGE
CCLXIII.	The old Hills'-man and his Truck 298
CCLXIV.	Welsh Lucy 299
CCLXV.	The little Heir of Shame 300
CCLXVI.	The Harvest Moon 301
CCLXVII.	Old Ruralities 302
CCLXVIII.	To a Red-Wheat Field 303
CCLXIX.	To a Scarecrow, or Malkin, left long after Harvest 304
CCLXX.	The Willow 305
CCLXXI.	The old Fox-Hunter 306
CCLXXII.	To the Gossamer-Light 307
CCLXXIII.	On finding a small Fly crushed in a Book 308
CCLXXIV.	The Eagle and the Sonnet 309
CCLXXV.	Gout and Wings 310
CCLXXVI.	Podager begs Pardon of Birds, Bees, and Wings in general 311
CCLXXVII.	A Colony of Nightingales 312
CCLXXVIII.	The Sparrow and the Dew-Drop 313
CCLXXIX.	To a Cuckoo in a Highway Hedge 314
CCLXXX.	The Swan and the Peacock 315
CCLXXXI.	My Timepiece 316
CCLXXXII.	Our new Church 317
CCLXXXIII.	Our new Church Clock 318
CCLXXXIV.	Twelve o'clock at Noon 319
CCLXXXV.	The Afternote of the Hour 320
CCLXXXVI.	After the School-Feast 321
CCLXXXVII.	The Murder of Bishop Patteson 322
CCLXXXVIII.	The Pastor's Prayer 323
CCLXXXIX.	To the Holy Virgin 324
CCXC.	The Palm-Willow 325
CCXCI.	A Recantation 326
CCXCII.	On some Humming-Birds in a Glass Case 327

SONNETS NOW FIRST PUBLISHED, EXCEPT FOUR OR FIVE, WHICH HAVE APPEARED IN MAGAZINES.

CCXCIII.	Localities of Burns 329
CCXCIV.	To a starved Hare in the Garden in Winter 330
CCXCV.	On the Secularist's Notion of making our Churches into Museums and Exhibitions 331
CCXCVI.	The Air Register 332

CONTENTS.

xxi

		PAGE
CCXCVII.	An Evening in Harvest Time	333
CCXCVIII.	Nature and Language	334
CCXCIX.	The classic Lark	335
CCC.	On seeing a Little Child spin a Coin of Alexander the Great	336
CCCI.	To a 'Tenting' Boy	337
CCCII.	East or West	338
CCCIII.	The Flock for the Market	339
CCCIV.	Paulum Sylvæ	340
CCCv.	The Lectern's Foot	341
CCCVI.	Letty's Globe	342
CCCvII.	The Oak and the Hill	343
CCCvIII.	The Mute Lovers on the Railway Journey	344
CCCIX.	A Night-Charge against a Swan by a Lover	345
CCCX.	The Seaside Truants	346
CCCXI.	The Innocent Listener	347
CCCXII.	The Sonneteer to the Sea-Shell	348
CCCXIII.	To a Nightingale on its Return	349
CCCXIV.	The Drowned Spaniel	350
CCCXV.	The classic Canary on its Death, by a Student	351
CCCXVI.	Great Britain through the Ice	352
CCCXVII.	To Mrs. Cameron, Freshwater, Isle of Wight	353
CCCXVIII.	The Lover and his Watch	354
CCCXIX.	Beau Nash and the Roman	355
CCCXX.	The Lark's Nest	356
CCCXXI.	Old Stephen	357
CCCXXII.	The Sighing of the Boehmer Wald	358
CCCXXIII.	Public and Private Use of the Telegraph .	359
CCCXXIV.	The Widowed Bridegroom	360
CCCXXV.	The Posted Swan	361
CCCXXVI.	Julius Cæsar and the Honey-Bee	362
CCCXXVII.	Nightingales in Lincolnshire	363
CCCXXVIII.	It was her first sweet child, her heart's delight	364
CCCXXIX.	On Shooting a Swallow in early Youth	365
CCCXXX.	The quiet Tide near Ardrossan	366
CCCXXXI.	Agnes and Aries	367
CCCXXXII.	Rose and Cushie	368
CCCXXXIII.	Two Sorts of Emigrants	369
CCCXXXIV.	To a German Lady	370
CCCXXXV.	To a Greek Girl on the Sea Shore	371
CCCXXXVI.	The Wedding Posy	372

	PAGE
CCCXXXVII. Millie Macgill	373
CCCXXXVIII. To Beatrice on her first Interview with Dante	374
CCCXXXIX. Calvus to-a Fly	375
CCCXL. Cowper's Three Hares	376
CCCXLI. A Country Dance	377
CCCXLII. Shadows off the Coast	378

LYRICS.

I. The Altar	381
II. A Legend from De Lamartine's Travels in the East, versified	382
III. An Incident on the Dee	385
IV. The council of the brave are met	386
V. Ye mighty forests, deep and old	388
VI. A Father to his Sleeping Child	389
VII. My Mother	390