

Table of contents

Abbreviations	VII
Canonical and non-canonical subjects in constructions: Perspectives from cognition and discourse Marja-Liisa Helasvuo and Tuomas Huumo	1
Section I. Grammatical and discourse perspectives on non-canonical subjects
On the subject of subject in Finnish Tuomas Huumo and Marja-Liisa Helasvuo	13
Hidden subjects in conversation: Estonian personless verb forms as referential devices Renate Pajusalu	43
Subjects under generic conditions: Implied subjects in Finnish and Estonian if -clauses Hanna Jokela and Helen Plado	73
Section II. Stretching the limits of subjecthood
Abstract locational subjects: Field and settings in French and English Michel Achard	101
Subjecthood of the agent argument in Estonian passive constructions Liina Lindström	141
Categorization and semantics of subject-like obliques: A cross-linguistic perspective Ilja A. Seržant	175
The world is raining: Meteorological predicates and their subjects in a typological perspective Pål K. Eriksen, Seppo Kittilä, and Leena Kolehmainen	205

Section III. Subjects in networks of constructions

The syntactic and semantic history of the Finnish genitive subject: Construction networks and the rise of a grammatical category Jaakko Leino	231
From canon and monolith to clusters: A constructionist model of subjecthood in Russian Aki-Juhani Kyröläinen	253
The role of non-canonical subjects in the overall grammar of a language: A case study of Russian Laura Janda and Dagmar Divjak	293
Construction index	319
Subject index	321