

Contents

Acknowledgments	9
Questioning the Word “Dispositif”	11
Note on the Translation
François Albera and Maria Tortajada (editors);
Franck Le Gac (translator)
Foreword	15
François Albera and Maria Tortajada
I. Dispositives: Programs
The Dispositive Does Not Exist!	21
François Albera, Maria Tortajada
Between Knowing and Believing	45
The Cinematic Dispositive after Cinema
Thomas Elsaesser
II. Dispositives: Issues
“You Do Not Even Know Where You Are”	75
Dispositive and Dizziness
Patrick Désile
Marey and the Synthesis of Movement	93
The Reconstruction of a Concept
Maria Tortajada
Notes on the Bergsonian Cinematograph	115
Elie During
The Stereopticon and Cinema	129
Media Form or Platform?
Charles Musser

On Some Limitations of the Definition of the Dispositive “Cinema” André Gaudreault	161
The Moment of the “Dispositif” Omar Hachemi	179
The “Dispositive Effect” in Film Narrative Philippe Ortel	195
 III. Dispositives: Histories
The Social Imaginary of Telephony Fictional Dispositives in Albert Robida’s Le Vingtième Siècle and the Archeology of “Talking Cinema” Alain Boillat	217
Between Paradoxical Spectacles and Technical Dispositives Looking Again at the (Serpentine) Dances of Early Cinema Laurent Guido	249
Forms of Machines, Forms of Movement Benoît Turquety	275
The Amateur-Dispositive François Albera	299
Two Versions of the Television Dispositive Gilles Delavaud	319
Reality Television as Dispositive: The Case of French-Speaking Switzerland Charlotte Bouchez	341
Dispositive and Cinemoetry, around Foucault’s Death and the Labyrinth Christophe Wall-Romana	359

Archaeology and Spectacle	379
Old Dispositives and New Objects for Surprised Spectators Stopping by the Museum
Viva Paci
About the Authors	393
Index of Titles	399
Index of Names	403