
Contents

Acknowledgments	page xi
Introduction: Mania as rhetoric	1
 PART I: DEFIANT VOICE
1 "Howle, you great ones": enthusiastic subjectivity as class rhetoric	25
2 "A huge loud voice": levelling and the gendered body politic	50
3 Strange acts and prophetic pranks: apocalypse as process in Abiezer Coppe	77
 PART II: PATRICIAN DIAGNOSIS
4 Return to madness: mania as plebeian vapors in Swift	101
 PART III: CHALLENGING LIMINALITY
5 Scribe-evangelist: popular writing and enthusiasm in Smart's Jubilate Agno	129
6 Double jeopardy: the provenance and reception of Jubilate Agno	155
7 Smart's bawdy politic: misogyny and the second Age of Horn in Jubilate Agno	179
8 Smart's poetics of place: myth versus utopia in Jubilate Agno	206
Epilogue: Beyond pathology	230
Index	236