

Contents

| | |
|------------------------------|------|
| List of Contributors | ix |
| List of Illustrations | xiii |
| Preface | xv |
| Acknowledgments | xvii |
| Introduction | 1 |

I. GENDER AND GENRE

| | | |
|--|--------------------------|----|
| ✕ A Woman's Portion: Jane Austen and the Female Character | Linda C. Hunt | 8 |
| Fanny Burney's "Feminism": Gender or Genre? | Martha G. Brown | 29 |
| Men, Women, and Money: The Case of Mary Brunton | Sarah W. R. Smith | 40 |

II. FEMININE ICONOGRAPHY

| | | |
|--|-------------------------|-----|
| "At the Crossroads": Sister Authors and the Sister Arts | Katrin R. Burlin | 60 |
| Penelope's Daughters: Images of Needlework in Eighteenth-Century Literature | Cecilia Macheski | 85 |
| Placing the Female: The Metonymic Garden in Amatory and Pious Narrative, 1700–1740 | April London | 101 |
| Radcliffe's Dual Modes of Vision | Rhoda L. Flaxman | 124 |

III. LOVE, SEX, AND MARRIAGE

| | | |
|---------|------------------------------|-----|
| Sisters | Patricia Meyer Spacks | 136 |
|---------|------------------------------|-----|

| | | |
|---|------------------------------|-----|
| "I Died for Love": Esteem in Eighteenth-Century Novels by Women | Paula R. Backscheider | 152 |
| Matrimonial Discord in Fiction and in Court: The Case of Ann Masterman | Susan Staves | 169 |
| "Descending Angels": Salubrious Sluts and Pretty Prostitutes in Haywood's Fiction | Mary Anne Schofield | 186 |
| The Old Maid, or "to grow old, and be poor, and laughed at" | Jean B. Kern | 201 |

IV. MORAL AND POLITICAL REVOLUTION

| | | |
|---|-------------------------|-----|
| Politics and Moral Idealism: The Achievement of Some Early Women Novelists | Jerry C. Beasley | 216 |
| Charlotte Smith's Desmond : The Epistolary Novel as Ideological Argument | Diana Bowstead | 237 |
| Hannah More's Tracts for the Times: Social Fiction and Female Ideology | Mitzi Myers | 264 |
| Jane Austen and the English Novel of the 1790s | Gary Kelly | 285 |

V. FICTIONAL STRATEGIES

| | | |
|---|----------------------------|-----|
| Springing the Trap: Subtexts and Subversions | Deborah Downs-Miers | 308 |
| Frances Sheridan: Morality and Annihilated Time | Margaret Anne Doody | 324 |
| A Near-Miss on the Psychological Novel: Maria Edgeworth's Harrington | Twila Yates Papay | 359 |

VI. THE NOVEL AND BEYOND:
CRITICAL ASSESSMENTS

| | | |
|---|---------------------------|-----|
| Aphra Behn and the Works of the Intellect | Robert Adams Day | 372 |
| “Ladies . . . Taking the Pen in Hand”: Mrs. Barbauld’s Criticism of Eighteenth-Century Women Novelists | Catherine E. Moore | 383 |
| The Modern Reader and the “Truly Feminine Novel” 1660–1815: A Critical Reading List | Roger D. Lund | 398 |
| Afterword: Jane Austen Looks Ahead | Irene Tayler | 426 |
| Index | | 434 |