

Contents

List of Figures	vii
Notes on Contributors	ix
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction: Seeing America Christine DeVine	1
Part 1 Imagining a New World
1 A Joy on the Precipice of Death: John Muir and Robert Louis Stevenson in California Matthew Kaiser	23
2 Utopian Ideals in Transatlantic Context: Frances Wright's American Vision Caroline M. Kisiel	49
3 The Failure of Dickens's Transatlantic Dream in American Notes John McBratney	69
4 National Adolescence and Imaginative Freedom: The Traveling Desires of Martineau and Bird Kendall A. McClellan	87
5 "Lodestar to Isabella's Wanderings": Bird's West and her British Audience Lindsay Mayo Fincher	103
Part 2 Politics and its Discontents
6 British Travelers and the "Condition-of-America Question": Defining America in the 1830s Elizabeth J. Deis and Lowell T. Frye	121
7 "Inexpressibly Engaging": Fanny Trollope Visits Charles Bird King's Portraits of Indian Chiefs Christine DeVine	151
8 Intertextuality in Charles Dickens's American Notes and Basil Hall's Travels in North America Nathalie Vanfasse	169

Part 3 Heading South: The Slave States

9	“Condemned of Nature”: British Travelers on the Landscape of the Antebellum American South M.B. Hackler	185
10	“My dearly-beloved Americans”: Harriet Martineau’s Transatlantic Abolitionism Deborah Anna Logan	203
11	“Too abhorrent to Englishmen to render a representation of it ... acceptable”: Slavery as Seen by British Artists Traveling in America Susan P. Casteras	221
12	Telling “a still more dismal story”: Cultural Role-Playing and Surrogate Narration in Kemble’s Georgian Journal Kristianne Kalata Vaccaro	251
13	The Closing of an American Vision: Alien National Narrative in Henry James’s The American Scene Keiko Nitta	267
	Bibliography	285
	Index	305