

Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xiii
PART ONE Three Essays in Background
1. What Renaissance Poets Would Have Known	3
2. Answers and Questions	17
3. Donne's Pictures of the Good Death	49
PART TWO Writing about One's Own Death
4. Respice Finem	69
5. Death in Earnest: "Tichborne's Elegy"	75
6. Dying in Jest and Earnest: Raleigh	84
7. Imagined Dyings: John Donne	94
8. Entering the History of Death: George Herbert	111
9. " The Plaudite, or end of life "	116
PART THREE On the Death of Someone Else
10. Introduction	121
11. Lament, Praise, Consolation: Pain/Difficulty, Ease	127
12. The Death of a Loved One: Personal and Public Expressions	137
13. Episodes in the Progress of Death	160
PART FOUR Expression
14. Preliminary Views	181
15. Thought and Images	186

Contents

16. Images of Reflection	195
17. Reasoning by Resemblances	208
18. Intricacies	224
19. The End	259
Notes	283
Index	297