

Contents

Preface	page vii
List of Contributors	xi
Introduction
1. Culture and cognition NAOMI QUINN & DOROTHY HOLLAND	3
Part I. Presupposed worlds, language, and discourse
2. The definition of lie : an examination of the folk models underlying a semantic prototype EVE E. SWEETSER	43
3. Linguistic competence and folk theories of language: two English hedges PAUL KAY	67
4. Prestige and intimacy: the cultural models behind Americans' talk about gender types DOROTHY HOLLAND & DEBRA SKINNER	78
5. A folk model of the mind ROY D'ANDRADE	112
Part II. Reasoning and problem solving from presupposed worlds
6. Proverbs and cultural models: an American psychology of problem solving GEOFFREY M. WHITE	151
7. Convergent evidence for a cultural model of American marriage NAOMI QUINN	173
Part III. The role of metaphor and analogy in representing knowledge of presupposed worlds
8. The cognitive model of anger inherent in American English GEORGE LAKOFF & ZOLTÁN KÖVECSES	195

9. Two theories of home heat control WILLETT KEMPTON	222
10. How people construct mental models ALLAN COLLINS & DEDRE GENTNER	243
Part IV. Negotiating social and psychological realities
11. Myth and experience in the Trobriand Islands EDWIN HUTCHINS	269
12. Goals, events, and understanding in Ifaluk emotion theory CATHERINE LUTZ	290
13. Ecuadorian illness stories: cultural knowledge in natural discourse LAURIE PRICE	313
14. Explanatory systems in oral life stories CHARLOTTE LINDE	343
Part V. An appraisal
15. Models, "folk" and "cultural": paradigms regained? ROGER M. KEESING	369
Index	395