

c o n t e n t s

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction The Rise of the Art-Novel and the Question of Class 1

Certain Novels 1

Mental Labor 10

Methodological Philistinism: From Difference to Distinction 19

One The Mind's Eye and Mental Labor: Forms of Distinction in the Fiction of Henry James 30

The Novel as Masterpiece 30

Epistemologies of Social Class 42

The Romance of Romance: Virtue Unrewarded 49

Divisive Perspectivism 53

Two Social Geometries: Taking Place in the Jamesian
Modernist Text 57

The Hidden Dimensions of Class 57

Fictions of the Mass 66

Extraordinary Readers 74

Three Downward Mobilities: The Prison of the Womb and the Architecture of Career in Stephen Crane 78

House of Fiction, House of Shame 78

Urban Ambitions: Crane, Wharton, O. Henry 85

Transient Occupations: From Howells to Crane to Dos Passos 102

Four Highbrows and Dumb Blondes: Literary Intellectuals and the Romance of Intelligence 106

Playing Dumb with Anita Loos 106

Bad Students and Smart Sets 111

Morons and Moralizers: The Eugenic Romance 118

Smart White Blacks: Mencken, Stein, and Race 124

Pastoral Intellection 129

Five Faulkner's Ambit: Modernism, Regionalism, and the Location of Cultural Capital 135

Racinations: A Deeper South 135

Relations: Modernism and Mules 146

Six	Making “Literature” of It: Dashiell Hammett and the Mysteries of High Culture	158
	God, Mammon, and Willard Wright	158
	Murdering Representation	166
Afterword	Möbius Fictions	177
Notes		183
Index		215