

Contents

Lewis Carroll	frontispiece
Acknowledgements	xi
Short Titles	xiii
Introduction	xv
Biographical Chronology	xxv

PART I CHILDHOOD AND FAMILY

Beginning Stuart Dodgson Collingwood	3
The Young Poet–Artist Stuart Dodgson Collingwood	5
At Richmond School James Tate	6
Prizes at Rugby Frances Jane Dodgson	7
Charlie’s Hooping Cough Frances Jane Dodgson	8
Unhappy at Rugby Stuart Dodgson Collingwood	9
An Interview with Lewis Carroll’s Nephew–Biographer	10
‘Do you believe in fairies?’ F. Menella Dodgson	14
A Rebuke from Him Violet Dodgson	16
An ‘uninspiring lecturer’ Violet Dodgson	18
His Kindness to Animals Henrietta Dodgson	21
Two False Stories about Him Stanley Godman	22
‘He shaved in cold water’ ‘ Wyefarer ’	23
My Uncle, Lewis Carroll Irene Dodgson Jaques	25
A Conversation with Dodgson’s Niece Irene Dodgson Jaques	27

PART II OXFORD

‘I figure as the “duck”’ Robinson Duckworth	31
He was of the Old Order at Oxford T. B. Strong	32
Stories True and False T. B. Strong	35
His Own Invention Frederick York Powell	40
‘An excellent after-dinner speaker’ Frederick York Powell	45
A Mind of ‘twofold activity’ Lionel A. Tollemache	46
His ‘Intense solemnity and earnestness’ H. L. Thompson	52
Curator of Common Room Arthur Hassal	54
‘The walks were well worth the cricks!’ Mrs E. L. Shute	55

'Not an alluring personage' W. Tuckwell	58
'The most prolific malcontent' Michael Sadleir	59
'A just horror of the interviewer' G. J. Cowley-Brown	61
'Known only to the world' Claude M. Blagden	63
'He liked to "quiz" his neighbours' Viscount Simon	66
'The living embodiment of the old Oxford' J. B.	68
'His simplicity of mind and heart' Francis Paget	70
His Scheme for Redistribution Henry Scott Holland	71
'His tantalizing taciturnity' H. A. L. Fisher	72
A Production of Alice Alan Mackinnon	73
On Homer	73
'He fined me 10s.' Lord Kilbracken	74
Oxford Women Adore his Memory Laurence Hutton	75
His 'dry and perfunctory manner' Herbert Maxwell	75
A Joke Edward Lee Hicks	76
He was 'extremely lucid' John H. Pearson	76
A First Tutorial Watkin H. Williams	77
'Deaf on one side' G. S. D.	78
'Homer nods' Minnie Tollington	78
His 'innate kindness' ' The Last of the Servitors '	79

PART III CHILD FRIENDS

The Friendship that Sparked Alice's Adventures Alice (Liddell) Hargreaves	83
'The inner life of a famous man' Isa Bowman	89
Some of his Child Friends were 'married women with children of their own' Beatrice Hatch	102
'Never . . . did any man make more friends among children' Beatrice Hatch	106
'They have such wrong ideas about him' Ethel Hatch	109
'He was always staid and dignified' Ethel Hatch	110
The 'fresh beauty' of his Child Friends Appealed to 'his very keen artistic sense' Evelyn M. Hatch	115
'Out of temper' Evelyn M. Hatch	119
'It is the stupidest book I ever read!' Evelyn M. Hatch	120
A Lecturer with a Black Handbag Evelyn M. Hatch	121
The Fount of Stories that Never Ran Dry Enid Shawyer	123
'He was . . . terrified of my mamma' Enid Shawyer	126
'A tiny little note . . . asking me to tea' Enid Shawyer	127
To me he was Mr Dodgson E. M. Rowell	129
He Told 'strange and wonderful tales' H. L. Rowell	135
'At once he caught my idea' Gertrude Atkinson	138
'The most charming and courteous man' Maud Ffooks	140
'Your fifteen-minute friend, C. L. Dodgson' Isabel Standen	141

He Sent Biscuit Tins	Alice Standen	144
'The Great Lewis himself!!!'	Charlotte Rix	145
'We would climb about him'	Greville MacDonald	149
Their Friendship Survived into her Adolescence	Laurence Irving	151
'I was not amused'	Edward Gordon Craig	153
'He would talk with us (not to us)'	Kate Terry Gielgud	154
An Abrupt End to a Friendship	Margaret Davies	155
'He would probably spoil the party'	Ruth Waterhouse	158
'Here comes Mr Dodgson'	Ethel M. Arnold	161
'Three little girls . . . in a railway carriage'		167
'You never thought of him as any age in particular'
Mrs H. T. Stretton		170
A Few Surviving Sussex Friends	Stanley Godman	172
'He gave me the name of "Ducky"'	Edith Alice Maitland	174
The 'rigid rule of chaperonage was waived'	Edith Olivier	182
He 'carried her upon his shoulders many a time'
John Martin-Harvey		185
He Got her the Part of the White Queen	Irene Vanbrugh	186
An Acquaintance through Letters	Sydney Fairbrother	188
'He gave one the sense of . . . perfect understanding'
Ella C. F. Bickersteth		189
'As I sat on his knee'	Winifred Holiday	191
'He discovered her weeping dismally'	F. E. Hansford	193
'We cried when he went away'	Dymphna Ellis	194
He Rescues a Sodden Child	Harry R. Mileham	195
'So you are another Alice'	Alice Wilson Fox	196
'I alone was invited'	Rose L. Wood	197
Lunch in his Oxford Rooms	Margaret L. Woods	198
'He was one of us'	Bert Coote	199
Three Girls who Adored Him	Diana Bannister	200
'He used a different voice for each fox'
Conversation with Dorothy Burch		202
'In his happiest mood'	Alice Collet	203
He 'looked me gravely up and down'	Nora McFarlan	204
'I have brought a friend to see you'	Evelyn S. Karney	205
'Does your little girl enjoy that book?'	Charles F. N. Boulton	206
'Mr Alice in Wonderland'	Lancelot Robson	207
A Paper Boat	Freda Bremer	209
Doling out Cakes	An unidentified child friend	210
'He used to annoy me'	Mona M. Wallace Kidston	210
Supporter of a Women's University	Annie M. A. H. Rogers	211
A Typewritten Letter Arrived	Gladys Baly Hayes	212
A Visit to Mr Dodgson in Eastbourne	Catherine Lucy	214

PART IV ARTISTS, WRITERS, OTHER OBSERVERS

He 'came to see me and my work' Henry Holiday	219
The Illustrations for The Hunting of the Snark Henry Holiday	221
He Examined 'every illustration . . . under a magnifying glass' Harry Furniss	222
'His egotism' Harry Furniss	225
'My beloved friend' E. Gertrude Thomson	228
He Photographs the Rossettis William Michael Rossetti	237
'I beg . . . you not to put me in Vanity Fair ' Mrs E. M. Ward	239
'One of my earliest friends among literary folk' Ellen Terry	240
The Stage as an Elevating Influence A. W. Dubourg	241
A Journey to Russia Henry Parry Liddon	243
An Unexpected Guest M. E. Manners	247
He 'sorely tried the patience of his publisher' Charles Morgan	250
'Sir, I never do that for any one' Howard Hopley	256
'The stillest and shyest full-grown man' Mark Twain	257
'I heard mysterious noises under the table' George Baden-Powell	258
'They were listening to him open-mouthed' Mrs J. N. Bennie	259
Extracts from Letters to the Family upon Dodgson's Death	260
Index	263