

Contents

Acknowledgements	page vi
Part I Introduction and contexts	1
Introduction	3
1 Britishness, entry and exclusion	11
2 Constructing migrant journeys	41
Part II Early journeys, 1685–1880	75
3 Huguenot journeys: constructing the réfugiés	77
4 Volga Germans in the late nineteenth century: from refugees to foreign paupers	99
Part III The Nazi era	117
5 Constructing (another) ideal refugee journey: the Kinder	119
6 The St Louis and after: refugee journeys without end?	139
Part IV Colonial and postcolonial journeys	161
7 The Empire Windrush : the making of an iconic British journey	163
8 Stowaways and others: racism and alternative journeys into Britishness	186
Part V Conclusions	211
9 Britishness and the nature of migrant journeys	213
Notes	239
Bibliography	291
Index	313