1 Semantic Leaps	1
1.1 Productive Language Behavior	4
1.1.1 Cats on Mats	4
1.1.2 Mats on Cats	8
1.1.3 The Centrality of Mapping	10
1.2 Background	17
1.2.1 Frame Semantics	17
1.2.2 Mental Space Theory	21
1.3 Connections	28
PART ONE. FRAME-SHIFTING	31
2 Frame-Shifting and Models of Language Processing	33
2.1 Approaches to Comprehension	36
2.1.1 Composition: A Thoughtful Wife	38
2.1.2 Semantic Indeterminacy	41
2.1.3 Sense and Nonce Sense	42
2.1.4 Frame-Shifting: Another Thoughtful Wife	44
2.1.5 Constructivist Accounts	45
2.2 Frame-Shifting in One-Line Jokes	49
2.2.1 Typical Situations	49
2.2.2 Default Values	55
2.2.3 Reinterpretation	56
2.2.4 Goal Presupposition	58
2.2.5 Nonconventional Meanings	62
2.3 Conclusions	69

3	Models of Sentential Integration	71
3.1	Frame-Shifting in Text Processing	73
3.2	Frame-Shifting in Sentential Integration	75
3.3	Frame-Based Models	83
3.3.1	Frames and Constraint Satisfaction	84
3.3.2	The Story Gestalt Model	85
3.3.3	Structured Connectionism	87
3.3.4	Space Structuring	88
4	Frame-Shifting and the Brain	92
4.1	Neuropsychology	94
4.2	Event-Related Brain Potentials	98
4.2.1	Lexical Versus "Post"-Lexical Processing	100
4.2.2	What's in a Word?	104
4.2.3	ERP Indices of Frame-Shifting	106
4.2.4	Summary	113
	PART TWO. CONCEPTUAL BLENDING	115
II.1	Trashcan Basketball	115
II.2	Blending and Integration Networks	118
II.2.1	Single Framing Networks	120
II.2.2	Frame Networks	120
II.2.3	Blending Processes	122
II.2.4	Outline	123
5	Conceptual Blending in Modified Noun Phrases	125
5.1	Nominal Compounds	126
5.1.1	Conceptual Blending and Nominal Compounds	128
5.2	Predicating and Nonpredicating Adjectives	133
5.2.1	Predication and Noun Modification	138
5.2.2	Conceptual Blending and Predicating Modifiers	141
5.3	Privative Adjectives	144
5.3.1	The Sense Generation Model	144
5.3.2	Fake Guns	146
5.3.3	Stone Lions	150
5.3.4	Land Yachts and Luxury Cars	152
5.3.5	Summary	156
5.4	Conclusions	157
5.4.1	Analyzability and Compositionality	159

6	Conceptual Blending in Metaphor and Analogy	162
6.1	Blending in Metaphors	165
6.1.1	Cross-Domain Mapping in One-Sided Networks	167
6.1.2	Two-Sided Networks	168
6.1.3	Digging Deeper	170
6.1.4	Born on Third Base	172
6.2	Retrospective Projections	178
6.2.1	The Menendez Brothers Virus	179
6.2.2	The Menendez Brothers Virus II	183
6.2.3	The Right to Life Virus	185
6.2.4	Heidi Fleiss and Her Counterpart	191
6.2.5	Summary	196
6.3	Conclusion	197
6.3.1	Functions of a Blend	200
7	Counterfactual Conditionals	203
7.1	Truth, Acceptability, and Conditionals	204
7.2	Analogy and Identity	207
7.3	Frame-Shifting and Scalar Reasoning	212
7.3.1	Frame-Shifting	212
7.3.2	Scalar Reasoning	215
7.4	Counterfactual Selves	216
7.4.1	Knowledge Blends	217
7.5	Conclusions	219
PART THREE. APPLICATIONS: BLENDING, FRAMING, AND BLAMING		223
8	Framing in Moral Discourse	227
8.1	Cultural Models of Action, Responsibility, and Punishment	228
8.2	Framing and the Morality of Abortion	229
8.2.1	Choice, Trauma, and the Rape Exception	230
8.2.2	Blaming the Victim	233
8.2.3	From Victims to Criminals and Back	236
8.2.4	Testimony Against the Rape Exception	238
8.2.5	Why Punish Me?	241
8.3	Mere Semantics	243

9 Frame-Shifting and Scalar Implicature	246
9.1 Scalar Implicature	247
9.1.1 Pragmatic Scales and Rhetorical Strategies	251
9.2 Return to the Rape Exception	253
9.2.1 Linking Scales	254
9.2.2 Breaking the Links	255
9.2.3 Dialogue	258
9.3 Conclusion	264
10 The Space Structuring Model	267
10.1 My Dinner with Rodney	268
10.2 Turning the Cat on Its Head	278
10.2.1 Connections	281
Bibliography	283
Index	297
