

CONTENTS

| | |
|--|-----|
| Introduction | 7 |
| CHAPTER ONE Propositions and Sentences | 13 |
| 1. The proposition in Aristotle and his successors | |
| 2. The proposition in itself | |
| 3. The ascription theory of believing | |
| 4. Proposition-types and proposition instances | |
| CHAPTER TWO The Aristotelian Account of Affirmation and Denial | 40 |
| CHAPTER THREE The Kinds of Terms | 49 |
| 1. Subjects and predicates | |
| 2. Categoremata and syncategoremata | |
| 3. Types of ambiguity | |
| 4. Abstract and concrete, singular and general | |
| 5. The ten predicaments | |
| CHAPTER FOUR The General Term | 70 |
| 1. General and singular terms in Whately and Mill | |
| 2. General and singular terms in Keynes | |
| 3. General and singular terms in Johnson, Peirce and Frege | |
| 4. General and singular terms in Principia Mathematica | |
| 5. The elimination of abstract nouns | |
| CHAPTER FIVE Existential Propositions, and the Existential Import of Categorical Propositions | 106 |
| 1. Mill's flame-breathing serpent | |
| 2. Existential propositions in Bretano | |
| 3. Existential propositions in symbolic logic | |
| 4. The existential import of singulars | |
| Appendix | 136 |
| Index | 141 |