

Contents

General preface	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
1 Introduction	1
1.1 Barriers to learning	3
1.2 The concept of developmental dyslexia	2
1.3 Emotional correlates of dyslexia	20
1.4 Sex differences	23
1.5 Subtypes of dyslexia	24
1.6 Genetic aspects	31
1.7 Official attitudes to dyslexia in the UK	36
2 Case histories	40
2.1 Case history 1 (I E)	40
2.2 Case history 2 (M S)	43
2.3 Case history 3 (D F)	48
2.4 Case history 4 (identical twins)	51
3 Etiology	57
3.1 Introduction	57
3.2 Neurological perspective	59
3.3 Cognitive perspective	81
3.4 Summary of chapter	113
4 Dyslexia as a phenomenon of written language	115
4.1 Some features of written language	115
4.2 Models of written language process	120
4.3 Reading and spelling behaviour	127
4.4 Written language and dyslexia: a synthesis	133
5 Assessment	137
5.1 Introduction	137
5.2 'Background' factors	139
5.3 Assessment of intelligence	143

Contents

General preface	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
1 Introduction	1
1.1 Barriers to learning	3
1.2 The concept of developmental dyslexia	2
1.3 Emotional correlates of dyslexia	20
1.4 Sex differences	23
1.5 Subtypes of dyslexia	24
1.6 Genetic aspects	31
1.7 Official attitudes to dyslexia in the UK	36
2 Case histories	40
2.1 Case history 1 (I E)	40
2.2 Case history 2 (M S)	43
2.3 Case history 3 (D F)	48
2.4 Case history 4 (identical twins)	51
3 Etiology	57
3.1 Introduction	57
3.2 Neurological perspective	59
3.3 Cognitive perspective	81
3.4 Summary of chapter	113
4 Dyslexia as a phenomenon of written language	115
4.1 Some features of written language	115
4.2 Models of written language process	120
4.3 Reading and spelling behaviour	127
4.4 Written language and dyslexia: a synthesis	133
5 Assessment	137
5.1 Introduction	137
5.2 'Background' factors	139
5.3 Assessment of intelligence	143

5.4 Attainments	156
5.5 Perceptual, motor and memory skills	164
5.6 Screening procedures	166
5.7 Sample reports	172
6 Remediation	184
6.1 Research into remediation	184
6.2 General principles of remediation	191
6.3 Role of the parent in remediation	196
6.4 The relationship between assessment and remediation	198
6.5 Written language and remediation	200
6.6 Structured teaching	202
6.7 Multi-sensory teaching	208
6.8 Matching task to learner	214
6.9 The older dyslexic	219
6.10 Physiological training	225
6.11 Computer assisted learning	227
Appendix: Regression equations for IQ, CA and Attainment	228
References	230
Index (Names)	269
Index (Subjects)	274