Contents

Preface vii
List of Contributors ix

Introduction

Medical and Psychosocial Perspectives on Diabetes-related Technology: Editorial Overview
Clare Bradley, Philip Home and Margaret Christie 1

Technology and the Diabetic Patient: An Overview
Harry Keen 8

The Social Context of Technology in Diabetes Care: 'Compliance' and 'Control'
David Armstrong 17

Section 1: Blood Glucose Monitoring

Glucose Sensors
John C. Pickup 27

Optimizing Blood Glucose Monitoring
Chris Gillespie 38

The Use of a Computerised System in a Diabetic Pregnancy Clinic
Huw Alban Davies 49

Section 2: Insulin and Insulin Delivery

The Use of Technology in Assessing Manifestations of Acute Insulin-induced Hypoglycaemia in Humans
David A. Hepburn and Brian M. Frier 57

Implantable Insulin Infusion Pumps in the Management of Diabetes
Philip Home 73

The Pen-injector's Impact on Self-management
Judith North 84

Section 3: Technology in the Prevention and Treatment of Diabetes Complications

Use and Evaluation of Technology in the Detection and Treatment of Diabetic Retinopathy
Richard B.S. Newsom, Massimo Porta and Eva M. Kohner 91

Aids to Diabetes Management for the Visually Handicapped
Massimo Porta, Alison R. Bishop and Eva M. Kohner 107

Explaining and Expanding the Role of the Chiropodist in the Care of People with Diabetes
Christopher Stiles 114

Psychological Aspects of Diabetes Control and Complications Trial
John R. Kramer, Alan M. Jacobson, Christopher M. Ryan, William D. Murphy and the DCCT Research Group 122

Section 4: Appropriate Use of New Technologies

Measuring Needs in Patients with Diabetes
Chris R. Brewin, Clare Bradley and Philip Home 142

The Double-edged Sword of Technology in Health Care
Theresa M. Marteau 156

Appropriate Technology for Improving Diabetes Care: The Approach and Catalytic Role of the WHO
Kirsten Staehr Johansen 165

Section 5: Evaluation of New Technologies

Evaluating New Technologies: Psychological Issues in Research Design and Measurement
Clare Bradley 177

Assessing Quality of Life
Keith A. Meadows 192

The Economics of Diabetes Care
John Brazier and Richard Jeavons 203

Glossary of Terms 215
Index 221