

Contents

Preface and Acknowledgments	ix
Part I
1 The Novelist at the Crossroads	3
Part II Fiction and Criticism
2 Waiting for the End: Current Novel Criticism	37
3 Towards a Poetics of Fiction: An Approach through Language	55
4 Choice and Chance in Literary Composition: A Self-analysis	69
Part III Fiction and Catholicism
5 Graham Greene	87
6 The Uses and Abuses of Omniscience: Method and Meaning in Muriel Spark's The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie	119
7 The Chesterbelloc and the Jews	145
Part IV Fiction and Modernism
8 Objections to William Burroughs	161
9 Samuel Beckett: Some Ping Understood	172
10 Hemingway's Clean, Well-lighted, Puzzling Place	184
Part V Fiction and Utopia
11 Assessing H. G. Wells	205
12 Utopia and Criticism: The Radical Longing for Paradise	221
13 Post-pill Paradise Lost: John Updike's Couples	237
Part VI
14 Crosscurrents in Modern English Criticism	247
Notes	287
Index	293