

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
1. “Last Call to the West”: Richard Wright’s The Color Curtain	19
2. James Agee’s Quest for Forgiveness in Let Us Now Praise Famous Men	31
3. James Agee’s Fashioning of Guilt: The Morning Watch	45
4. Ernest J. Gaines’s Ideal of Community in A Gathering of Old Men	57
5. A Meditation on History and Ethics: Ernest J. Gaines’s A Lesson Before Dying	67
6. Henry Roth’s Narratives of Captivity	79
7. Physical Disability and the Sacramental Community in Flannery O’Connor’s Everything That Rises Must Converge	95
8. Race, Class, and Redemption in Walker Percy’s The Last Gentleman	107
9. The Risks of Membership: Richard Ford’s The Sportswriter	121
10. Representing the Subaltern Figure in William Styron’s The Confessions of Nat Turner and Thomas Keneally’s The Chant of Jimmie Blacksmith	135

viii From Richard Wright to Toni Morrison

11.	Obligations of the Dispossessed: The Ethical Vision of Kaye Gibbons's Ellen Foster and A Virtuous Woman	151
12.	Language and Cultural Authority in Toni Morrison's Jazz	163
	Bibliography	179
	Index	193