

Contents

Preface	page xv
Abbreviations	xvi
Introduction	xvii
A brief chronology of St Thomas's life	xxxvii
Bibliography	xxxviii
1 Government and politics	1
(a) Summa theologiae Ia 96: Concerning the dominion which belonged to man in the state of innocence	1
articulus 3: Whether men were equal in the state of innocence	1
articulus 4: Whether in the state of innocence man would have had dominion over man	3
(b) The treatise 'De regimine principum' or 'De regno'	5
Preface	5
Book I	5
Book II	45
(c) Summa theologiae IaIIae 105:1: Concerning the reason for the judicial precepts [of the Old Testament]	52
articulus 1: Whether the old law enjoined suitable precepts concerning rulers	52
2 Obedience	57
(a) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 104: On obedience	57
articulus 1: Whether one man is bound to obey another	57

articulus 2 : Whether obedience is a specific virtue	59
articulus 3 : Whether obedience is the greatest of the virtues	63
articulus 4 : Whether God is to be obeyed in all things	66
articulus 5 : Whether subjects are bound to obey their superiors in all things	68
articulus 6 : Whether Christians are bound to obey the secular powers	70
(b) Scripta super libros sententiarum II, Dist. 44, quaest. 2	72
articulus 2 : Whether Christians are bound to obey the secular powers, and tyrants in particular	72
3 Law	76
(a) Summa theologiae IaIIae 90: The essence of law	76
articulus 1 : Whether law is something belonging to reason	76
articulus 2 : Whether law is always directed to the common good	78
articulus 3 : Whether the reason of anyone whatsoever can make laws	80
articulus 4 : Whether promulgation is essential to law	82
(b) Summa theologiae IaIIae 91: The various kinds of law	83
articulus 1 : Whether there is an eternal law	83
articulus 2 : Whether there is a natural law in us	85
articulus 3 : Whether there is a human law	87
articulus 4 : Whether it was necessary for there to be a Divine law	89
articulus 5 : Whether there is only one Divine law	91
articulus 6 : Whether there is a 'law of lust' [lex fornicationis]	93
(c) Summa theologiae IaIIae 92: The effects of law	95
articulus 1 : Whether it is an effect of law to make men good	96
articulus 2 : Whether the functions of law are properly described [as commanding, prohibiting, permitting and punishing]	99
(d) Summa theologiae IaIIae 93: The eternal law	101
articulus 1 : Whether the eternal law is supreme reason existing in God	101
articulus 2 : Whether the eternal law is known to all men	103

Contents

articulus 3 : Whether every law is derived from the eternal law	105
articulus 4 : Whether necessary and eternal things are subject to the eternal law	107
articulus 5 : Whether natural contingents are subject to the eternal law	109
articulus 6 : Whether all human affairs are subject to the eternal law	111
(e) Summa theologiae IaIIae 94: The natural law	114
articulus 1 : Whether the natural law is a habit	114
articulus 2 : Whether the natural law contains several precepts, or only one	116
articulus 3 : Whether all acts of virtue are prescribed by the natural law	118
articulus 4 : Whether the natural law is the same in all men	120
articulus 5 : Whether the natural law can be changed	123
articulus 6 : Whether the law of nature can be abolished from the heart of man	125
(f) Summa theologiae IaIIae 95: Human law considered in itself	126
articulus 1 : Whether it was useful for certain laws to be established by men	126
articulus 2 : Whether every human law is derived from the natural law	129
articulus 3 : Whether Isidore's description of the quality of positive law is appropriate	131
articulus 4 : Whether Isidore's division of human laws is appropriate	133
(g) Summa theologiae IaIIae 96: Of the power of human law	137
articulus 1 : Whether human law should be framed for the community rather than the individual	137
articulus 2 : Whether it belongs to human law to restrain all vices	139
articulus 3 : Whether human law prescribes all acts of virtue	141
articulus 4 : Whether human law binds a man in the court of conscience	143

articulus 5 : Whether all men are subject to the law	145
articulus 6 : Whether one who is subject to a law may go beyond the letter of the law	147
(h) Summa theologiae IaIIae 97: Of change in the laws	149
articulus 1 : Whether human law should be changed in any way	149
articulus 2 : Whether human law should always be changed when something better arises	151
articulus 3 : Whether custom can obtain the force of law	153
articulus 4 : Whether the rulers of a community can dispense from human laws	155
4 Right, justice and judgment	158
(a) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 57: On right	158
articulus 1 : Whether right [ius] is the object of justice [iustitia]	158
articulus 2 : Whether right is suitably divided into natural right and positive right	161
articulus 3 : Whether the ‘right of nations’ [ius gentium] is the same as natural right [ius naturale]	163
articulus 4 : Whether paternal right and dominative right should be regarded as different species of right	165
(b) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 58: On justice	168
articulus 1 : Whether justice is suitably defined as ‘a constant and perpetual will to render to each his right’	168
articulus 2 : Whether justice is always towards another	171
articulus 3 : Whether justice is a virtue	173
articulus 4 : Whether justice is in the will as its subject	175
articulus 5 : Whether justice is a general virtue	176
articulus 6 : Whether justice, insofar as it is a general virtue, is the same in essence as all virtue	178
articulus 7 : Whether there is a particular justice as well as general [i.e. ‘legal’] justice	181
articulus 8 : Whether particular justice has a specific field of concern	183
articulus 9 : Whether justice is concerned with the passions	184

articulus 10 : Whether the mean of justice is an objective mean [medium rei]	187
articulus 11 : Whether the act of justice is to render to each his own	189
articulus 12 : Whether justice is pre-eminent among the moral virtues	190
(c) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 60: On judgment	192
articulus 1 : Whether judgment is an act of justice	192
articulus 2 : Whether it is lawful to judge	194
articulus 3 : Whether it is unlawful to judge on the basis of suspicion	196
articulus 4 : Whether doubts should receive the more favourable interpretation	198
articulus 5 : Whether we ought always to judge according to the written law	200
articulus 6 : Whether judgment is rendered wrongful by usurpation	202
5 Property relations	205
(a) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 66: On theft and robbery	205
articulus 1 : Whether it is natural for man to possess external things	205
articulus 2 : Whether it is lawful for anyone to possess something as his own	207
articulus 3 : Whether the nature of theft lies in taking someone else's property secretly	209
articulus 4 : Whether theft and robbery are sins of different species	210
articulus 5 : Whether theft is always a sin	212
articulus 6 : Whether theft is a mortal sin	214
articulus 7 : Whether it is lawful to steal by reason of necessity	216
articulus 8 : Whether robbery may be committed without sin	217
articulus 9 : Whether theft is a more grievous sin than robbery	219
(b) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 78: On the sin of usury	220
articulus 1 : Whether it is a sin to take usury for a loan of money	220

articulus 2 : Whether one may ask for some other kind of consideration for a loan of money	225
articulus 3 : Whether someone is bound to restore whatever profits he has made out of money lent upon usury	229
articulus 4 : Whether it is lawful to borrow money upon usury	231
(c) The letter to the Duchess of Brabant ‘On the government of Jews’	233
6 War, sedition and killing	239
(a) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 40: On war	239
articulus 1 : Whether it is always a sin to wage war	239
articulus 2 : Whether it is lawful for clerics and bishops to fight	242
articulus 3 : Whether it is lawful to make use of ambushes in war	245
articulus 4 : Whether it is lawful to fight on holy days	246
(b) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 42: On sedition	247
articulus 1 : Whether sedition is a specific sin distinct from others	247
articulus 2 : Whether sedition is always a mortal sin	249
(c) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 64: On homicide	251
articulus 1 : Whether it is unlawful to kill any living thing	251
articulus 2 : Whether it is lawful to kill sinners	253
articulus 3 : Whether it is lawful for a private person to kill a man who has sinned	255
articulus 4 : Whether it is lawful for clerics to kill malefactors	256
articulus 5 : Whether it is lawful for someone to slay himself	258
articulus 6 : Whether it is lawful to kill the innocent	261
articulus 7 : Whether it is lawful to kill someone in self-defence	262
articulus 8 : Whether one incurs the guilt of homicide through slaying a man by chance	265
7 Religion and politics	267
(a) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 10: On relations with unbelievers	267

Contents

articulus 8: Whether unbelievers ought to be coerced into the faith	267
articulus 10: Whether unbelievers may have authority or dominion over the faithful	270
articulus 11: Whether the rites of unbelievers ought to be tolerated	272
(b) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 11: On heresy	274
articulus 3: Whether heretics ought to be tolerated	274
(c) Summa theologiae IIaIIae 12: On apostasy	276
articulus 2: Whether a prince forfeits his dominion over his subjects by reason of his apostasy from the faith, so that they are no longer bound to obey him	276
(d) Scripta super libros sententiarum 11, Dist. 44, quaest. 3	277
articulus 4: On spiritual and temporal power	277
Biographical glossary	279
Index	297