

Internationalising Japan

Discourse and practice

Edited by Jeremy Breaden,
Stacey Steele and
Carolyn S. Stevens

Contents

List of tables	xi
List of contributors	xii
Acknowledgements	xv
Notes on transliterations	xvi
1 Introduction: internationalising Japan as discourse and practice	1
JEREMY BREADEN AND CAROLYN S. STEVENS
2 The dog that didn't bark: 3/11 and international students in Japan	13
JEREMY BREADEN AND ROGER GOODMAN
3 Internationalising legal education in Japan as discourse and practice	32
KOTA FUKUI AND STACEY STEELE
4 From 'internationalisation' to 'multicultural co-living' in Japanese schools	53
KAORI OKANO
5 Fitting Japanese cuisine into Australia: im-perfect translations	68
IORI HAMADA AND CAROLYN S. STEVENS
6 Internationalising Japanese culture: Australian interpretations of Urasenke Chadō (the Way of Tea) tradition	84
STACEY STEELE

7 Uneven cosmopolitanism: Japanese working holiday makers in Australia and the ‘lost decade’	106
KUMIKO KAWASHIMA
8 Self-help groups for alcoholics in Japan: models of ‘recovery’	125
RICHARD CHENHALL AND TOMOFUMI OKA
9 Globalisation, soccer, and the sportsworlds of Japan, Australia and the United States	142
WILLIAM W. KELLY
10 Internationalising sumo: from viewing to doing Japan’s national sport	158
HOWARD GILBERT AND KATRINA WATTS
11 The transfer of Japanese baseball players to major league baseball: have Japanese ball players been internationalised?	180
KEIJI KAWAI AND MATT NICHOL
12 Conclusion: reflections on the rhythms of internationalisation in post-disaster Japan	195
VERA MACKIE
Index	207