

Anti-Gender Campaigns in Europe

Mobilizing against Equality

Edited by Roman Kuhar and David Paternotte

ROWMAN &
LITTLEFIELD
INTERNATIONAL

London • New York

Contents

Abbreviations	ix
1 “Gender ideology” in movement: Introduction David Paternotte and Roman Kuhar	1
“Gender ideology” as a discourse	4
“Gender ideology” as a strategy	8
“Gender ideology” as a national phenomenon	16
References	17
2 “Gender ideology” in Austria: Coalitions around an empty signifier Stefanie Mayer and Birgit Sauer	23
The Austrian context and the emergence of the anti-gender discourse	24
Actors of the “gender ideology” alliance	27
Discursive analysis: What’s the problem with “gender ideology”?	29
Conclusion	36
References	38
3 “No prophet is accepted in his own country”: Catholic anti-gender activism in Belgium Sarah Bracke, Wannes Dupont and David Paternotte	41
Marching for the family	42
A strongly minorized movement in Flanders	44
Francophone Belgium: Activists with a French touch	46

- Why are they not influential? 48
 Conclusion 53
 References 56
- 4 Embryo, teddy bear-centaur and the constitution: Mobilizations against “gender ideology” and sexual permissiveness in Croatia 59
Amir Hodžić and Aleksandar Štulhofer
- Background 60
 A chronology of main activities and targets 62
 The defining characteristics of the movement 64
 Conclusion 70
 References 73
- 5 Resisting “gender theory” in France: A fulcrum for religious action in a secular society 79
Michael Stambolis-Ruhstorfer and Josselin Tricou
- Anti-gender mobilization in the 2010s 81
 Explaining the emergence of the anti-gender cause 82
 France’s “anti-gender” pipeline to the Vatican 84
 Translating the “anti-gender” cause for the 2010s: Reframing for a new context 85
 The religious, political and social backgrounds of activists: An organizing advantage with a communications liability 88
 Broadening the appeal of the anti-gender movement: Neutralizing the religious and social characteristics of the activists 89
 The effects of anti-gender mobilization on inter- and intra-religious political dynamics 91
 Conclusion 93
 References 95
- 6 “Anti-genderismus”: German angst? 99
Paula-Irene Villa
- General background: The situation in Germany 101
 Early articulations: Journalistic neoconservatism and lay Catholic/Christian voices 102
 The current situation: Anti-genderism as a missing link between heterogeneous constellations 108
 Conclusion 112
 References 114
- 7 Anti-gender discourse in Hungary: A discourse without a movement? 117
Eszter Kováts and Andrea Pető

	The history of a discourse	118
	Why is there no movement? Discouraging factors	123
	Why we could expect the emergence of a movement	125
	Conclusion	127
	References	129
8	Defending Catholic Ireland	133
	Mary McAuliffe and Sinéad Kennedy
	A Catholic nation for a Catholic people	134
	Abortion and Catholicism in Ireland	135
	The Irish Catholic Church and homosexuality	139
	The 2015 same-sex marriage campaign	140
	Conclusion	144
	References	147
9	Italy as a lighthouse: Anti-gender protests between the “anthropological question” and national identity	151
	Sara Garbagnoli
	From nothing to all: The emergency of gender in Italian politics	153
	Gender as a federating rallying cry with a make-up effect	154
	Protecting “our children” to defend the human and safeguard national identity	160
	Italy as a fertile ground for “gender ideology”	165
	References	171
10	“Worse than communism and Nazism put together”: War on gender in Poland	175
	Agnieszka Graff and Elzbieta Korolczuk
	Key actors and strategies in the Polish war on gender	176
	Main themes and developments	178
	“Anti-genderism” as an intellectual project	183
	Interpretations of anti-gender mobilization: Polish exceptionalism reconsidered	184
	Conclusion	188
	References	190
11	Russia as the saviour of European civilization: Gender and the geopolitics of traditional values	195
	Kevin Moss
	The Russian context	195
	“Gender ideology” discourse in Russia	199
	Academic homophobia: Moscow State University	200

The World Congress of Families	203
Politicians, political networking and the Russian Orthodox Church	206
Conclusion	208
References	209
12 Changing gender several times a day: The anti-gender movement in Slovenia	215
Roman Kuhar
A civil initiative of concerned citizens	216
The anti-gender movement and the Catholic Church	218
The interpretations and framings of “gender theory”	222
The success of the anti-gender movement	223
Conclusion	228
References	230
13 From the pulpit to the streets: Ultra-conservative religious positions against gender in Spain	233
Monica Cornejo and José Ignacio Pichardo Galán
Religion, society and politics	234
The emergence of the discourse on “gender ideology”	236
Anti-gender actors and their strategies	236
Explaining the low impact of high mobilization	243
References	247
14 The anti-gender movement in comparative perspective	253
David Paternotte and Roman Kuhar
Overview of the anti-gender movement in Europe	255
An uneven development in Europe	265
Europe in a global picture	269
References	272
Biographies	277
Index	283