

Rhetorics of empire

LANGUAGES OF COLONIAL CONFLICT
AFTER 1900

Edited by Martin Thomas and Richard Toye

MANCHESTER
UNIVERSITY PRESS

CONTENTS

List of figures—page ix
Notes on contributors—x
Acknowledgements—xiii

Introduction: rhetorics of empire Martin Thomas and Richard Toye	1
1 'The people are grateful': the discourse of modernization in the concentration camps of the South African War, 1899–1902 Elizabeth van Heyningen	22
2 'We don't want a pirate empire': imperial governance, the Transvaal Crisis and the anxieties of Liberal rhetoric on empire Simon Mackley	39
3 Civilization, empire and humanity: Theodore Roosevelt's second corollary to the Monroe Doctrine Charlie Laderman	58
4 Franklin D. Roosevelt and America's empire of anti- imperialism Andrew Preston	75
5 'The real question at issue': Mers el-Kébir and the rhetoric of imperial confrontation in July 1940 Rachel Chin	91
6 French late colonial rhetoric, 'myth' and imperial reason Martin Shipway	108
7 'Boom! goes the Congo': the rhetoric of control and Belgium's late colonial state Matthew Stanard	121
8 The hard side of soft power: Spanish rhetorics of empire from the 1950s to the 1970s Andreas Stucki	142
9 Repression, reprisals and rhetorics of massacre in Algeria's war Martin Thomas	161

CONTENTS

- 10 Arguing about Hola Camp: the rhetorical consequences of a colonial massacre 187
Richard Toye
- 11 Extended families or bodily decomposition? Biological metaphors in the age of European decolonization 208
Elizabeth Buettner
- 12 Rhetoric of the realm: monarchy in New Zealand, political rhetoric and adjusting to the end of empire 228
H. Kumarasingham

Index 249