

Mountain Mandalas

Shugendō in Kyushu

Allan G. Grapard

Bloomsbury Academic

An imprint of Bloomsbury Publishing Plc

B L O O M S B U R Y

LONDON • OXFORD • NEW YORK • NEW DELHI • SYDNEY

Contents

Illustrations	ix
Preface	xi
Organization of the Book	xiii
Acknowledgements	xiv
Note on Translation and Text	xvi
1 Shugendō and the Production of Social Space	1
Kyushu Island: an ignored world	6
The Hachiman cult's nebulous origins	12
Usa: from prehistoric village to cultic city	15
Oracular pronouncements as divine directives	34
The early Heian period: Iwashimizu Hachiman	38
The Kunisaki Peninsula and links to Usa	48
Mount Hiko	66
2 Geotyped and Chronotyped Social Spaces	83
Hachiman's traveling icons	85
Mount Hiko: of swords, meteors, dragons, and goshawks	103
Waiting for dawn on Mount Hiko: the geotype and chronotype of heterotopia	112
Mount Hiko's sacred perimeter: four corners and three dimensions	115
Altitude and altered states of mind: creating a Dōjō	123
Mandala templates: divine planning	137
Geotyped and chronotyped, encoded, mandalized bodies	143
The visionary imperative	148
3 Festivities and Processions: Spatialities of Power	157
Mount Hiko as a socio-ritualized space	157
Mount Hiko's conflicts with Mount Hōman and the Shōgo-in monzeki	166
Mount Hiko's ritual calendar	168
The New Year's shushō tsuina rite: expel and invite	170
The shushō goō rite: paper, pill, oath	171
The kissho shūgi rite: sanctioning power and rank	173

Mountain sanctuaries awash in seawater: the shioitori rite	174
For the birds: the Zōkei gokū rite	178
The Matsue and Ondasai ritual festivities	180
Mineiri : the mandalized peregrinations	190
Mandalized itineraries	194
Practices in the mountains	201
The Daigyōji shrines and water	206
Usa Hachiman's oracular spatialities	208
Kunisaki: a much-disturbed heterotopia	216
The geognostic realm of the lotus in Kunisaki	223
Coursing through the peninsula	231
4 Shattered Bodies, Statues, and the Entreaties of Truncated Memory	235
Mount Hiko's quasi-destruction and fall into irrelevance	235
Kunisaki: one breath away from the void of modernity	239
Usa: Hachiman's return in disguise	243
Afterword: From Spatialities to Dislocation	245
Rays of light	246
Japanese Glossary	249
Notes	261
Bibliography	287
Index	295