

Contents

Figures vii

Tables xi

Foreword xiii

Philip Kotler

Foreword xv

Jan Carlzon

Preface xvii

1. The Service Imperative: The New Competition of the Service Economy 1
2. The Nature of Services and Service Quality 25
3. Managing Customer-Perceived Service Quality 49
4. Managing the Service Product: The Augmented Service Offering 71
5. Service Strategy and Principles of Service Management 93
6. Marketing Management or Market-Oriented Management 125
7. Managing Total Market Communication and Image 155

8. Organizing for Market Orientation: Structure and Resources 175
 9. Managing the Moments of Truth: Integrating Service Production with the Consumption Process 201
 10. Managing Internal Marketing—A Prerequisite for Successful External Marketing 221
 11. Managing Service Culture: The Internal Service Imperative 241
 12. Conclusions: Quality Management and the Five Rules of Service 257
- Bibliography 277
- Index 293
- About the Author 297

Figures

- 2-1. Two Service Quality Dimensions 38
- 2-2. The Total Perceived Quality 41
- 2-3. Determinants of Perceived Service Quality 45
- 2-4. The Six Criteria of Good Perceived Service Quality 47
- 3-1. A Service Quality Management Framework 55
- 3-2. The Quality Evaluation Options 56
- 3-3. Conceptual Model of Service Quality—The Gap Analysis Model 59
- 3-4. The Grönroos-Gummesson Quality Model 66
- 4-1. The Augmented Service Offering 77
- 4-2. Image, Communication, and the Augmented Service Offering 82
- 5-1. The Strategic Management Trap 95
- 5-2. A Manufacturer-Oriented View of the Profit Equation 108
- 5-3. A Profit-Oriented View of Revenues and Costs in a Service Context 109
- 5-4. A Service-Oriented Approach 112

- 6-1. The Traditional Role of Marketing 127
- 6-2. The Customer Relationship Life Cycle 130
- 6-3. The Customer Relationship Life Cycle of a Transportation Company 132
- 6-4. The Two Marketing Functions of Service Organizations 142
- 6-5. The Three-Stage Model 143
- 6-6. The Marketing Strategy Continuum 146
- 6-7. The Marketing Circle 151
- 7-1. The Communication Circle 159
- 8-1. The Simultaneous Responsibility for Operations and Marketing among the Personnel in a Service Organization 177
- 8-2. Service-Oriented Organizational Structure 184
- 8-3. The Strength of Bigness versus the Strength of Smallness 186
- 8-4. A Customer-Oriented Organizational Structure for Services 189
- 8-5. A Strategic View of the Interrelationships of the Quality-Generating Resources 193
- 8-6. Internal Service Functions and Internal Customers 198
- 8-7. The Service Production System as a Function of Subprocesses 199
- 9-1. The Service Package and the Service Consumption Process 206
- 9-2. The Service Production System 208

9-3.	A Service Production/Consumption Scheme—Step 1	215
9-4.	A Service Production/Consumption Scheme—Step 2	216
9-5.	The Content of the Buyer-Seller Interactions	217
11-1.	Effects of a Service Orientation	244
12-1.	An Overview of a Market-Oriented Strategy	258
12-2.	Principles Guiding the Improvement of Service Quality	262