

Contents

Preface	ix
Introduction	1
Revisiting Identity and Language Learning	1
Relevance of Identity Research to Language Learning	2
Poststructuralist Theories of Identity	3
Identity and Investment	5
Imagined Communities and Imagined Identities	8
Identity Categories and Language Learning	11
Methods and Analysis of Research	13
Identity and Language Teaching	16
Emerging Themes and Future Directions	22
Structure of the Book	26
1 Fact and Fiction in Language Learning	41
Saliha and the SLA Canon	42
Identity and Language Learning	44
Power and Identity	46
Motivation and Investment	50
Ethnicity, Gender and Class	52
Rethinking Language and Communicative Competence	53
2 Researching Identity and Language Learning	58
Methodological Framework	58
Central Questions	60
The Researcher and the Researched	60
The Project	62
Data Organization	71
Comment	73
3 The World of Adult Immigrant Language Learners	76
The International Context	76

	The Canadian World of Immigrant Women	80
	Biography, Identity and Language Learning	85
	Comment	95
4	Eva and Mai: Old Heads on Young Shoulders	97
	Eva	98
	Mai	111
5	Mothers, Migration and Language Learning	124
	Katarina	126
	Martina	131
	Felicia	138
	Comment	144
6	Second Language Acquisition Theory Revisited	146
	Natural Language Learning	147
	Alberto and The Acculturation Model of SLA	150
	The Affective Filter	156
	Reconceptualizing Identity	161
	Language Learning as a Social Practice	166
	Comment	168
7	Claiming the Right to Speak in Classrooms and Communities	170
	Formal Language Learning and Adult Immigrants	171
	Beyond Communicative Language Teaching	175
	Rethinking Multiculturalism	179
	The Diary Study as a Pedagogy of Possibility	182
	Transforming Monday Morning	188
	Concluding Comment	190
	Afterword: Claire Kramersch	192
	Why the Interest in Social and Cultural Identity in SLA?	193
	Three Influential Concepts	195
	The Future of the 'Right to Speak'	196
	Discussion	197
	Conclusion	199
	References	202
	Index	211